DOORS OPEN TO MRS. PANKHURST

ORDER RELEASING BRITISH SUFFRAGETTE ISSUED BY PRESIDENT WILSON.

"ON HER OWN RECOGNIZANCE"

Understanding Is That She Leave This Country After Completing Her Lecture Engagements.

Washington, Oct. 20.—America's doors were opened today to Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst and during the few weeks covered by her lecture engagements the British militant suffragist leader is free to go where she will in the United States.

An order releasing the much discussed visitor from detention at Ellis Island, N. Y., and devoting the deportation order of the special inquiry board was issued today after President Wilson had conferred with Secretary Wilson of the department of labor and a formal hearing before Immigration Commissioner Caminetti on Mrs. Pankhurst's appeal had been concluded.

Secretary Wilson announced that he and the president had agreed that Mrs. Pankhurst should be admitted "on her own recognizance" with the understanding that she would depart when she had filled her lecture engagements.

Both the president and secretary agreed with Commissioner Caminetti in the opinion that there was an element of doubt as to whether the acts for which Mrs. Pankhurst had been convicted in England constituted moral turpitude or were political in character.

Commissioner Caminetti tonight issued a formal statement outlining the reasons for his decision in the case.

Caminetti's Statement.
"There is nothing in the record or before me," said the statement, "to indicate that the British government desires that Mrs. Pankhurst shall be returned to England; and the evidence of the record indicates that while she was placed under a sentence of three years' penal servitude she has served only a small part of the sentence and apparently no effort has been made to compel her to serve the balance, but as a matter of fact, marked leniency has been shown toward the applicant by the English authorities. Shall this government deny even temporary asylum when by doing so less consideration would be shown Mrs. Pankhurst than England has displayed?"

"Mrs. Pankhurst states, and counsel throughout the case have asserted that she is coming here only for a short visit for the specific purpose of fulfilling engagements to deliver lectures; that all that is desired is that she be allowed to carry out these engagements. Upon carefully considering the entire record and all of the circumstances of the case I conclude that the best disposition to make of the matter will be to accept the assurances of all parties concerned and admit Mrs. Pankhurst on her own recognizance to depart from the country at the determination of her engagements, and so recommend."

In his memorandum to the secretary the commissioner described the case in hand as follows:
"Allen is a native of Manchester, Eng., aged 51, traveling alone; is a widow with three children in Europe. Paid her own passage, has no occupation; has been in the United States twice before, once in the autumn of 1909 and again from October, 1911, to January, 1912, going to a friend, Mrs. H. P. Belmont, Madison avenue, New York; has $2,000. The record excluded Allen by unanimous vote as a person who has been convicted of a felony or other crime or misdemeanor which, in the opinion of the board, involves moral turpitude."

The decision by the president and Secretary Wilson was communicated to Commissioner Caminetti, who issued the formal order of release. President Wilson felt that the law had a flexible interpretation, so that it was largely a question of policy. Commissioner Caminetti's decision was in strict accordance with the views of President Wilson and the secretary of labor. Mr. Caminetti filed a brief memorandum recommending Mrs. Pankhurst's admission on her own recognizance.

There was no demonstration at the immigration bureau when the decision was announced. At headquarters of the National Woman's Suffrage association the news was received joyously.

Leaves Ellis Island.
New York, Oct. 20.—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the English militant suffragette leader, landed on Manhattan Island at 1 o'clock today from Ellis Island where she had been detained since last Saturday by the immigration authorities. Mrs. Pankhurst now will be able to carry out her contemplated lecture tour in this country. She expects to sail for Europe November 25. It was difficult to imagine that the slightly built, gray-haired little woman who stepped ashore from the

CRISIS AMONG KATY OPERATORS

J. J. DERMODY OF TELEGRAPHERS SHOWS SUPPOSED ROAD CONTRACT.

"MUST AGREE NOT TO STRIKE"

Men Not Allowed to Go Out in Case of Labor Troubles in Other Branches.

Dallas, Oct. 20.—After a few days of quiet the situation between the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railway of Texas and a part of its telegraph operators again were reported to be reaching a climax. In reply to the brief commands filed by the telegraphers' committee, the management of the road has, it is reported, drawn up a contract for the new men to sign, and men in their employ, it is understood, will be required to put themselves under ten tenets. A clause in the proposed agreement specifically bars the men signing it from participating in a strike.

J. J. Dermody, vice president of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers, furnished a copy of the supposed Katy contract, which he claimed drawn from an original blank form of it. Mr. Dermody's copy is as follows:

Supposed Katy Contract.
"I hereby make application for employment as railroad telegraph operator with the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railway company and represent myself to be an experienced, capable man in that capacity."

"In accepting employment with the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railway company I understand I am to be assigned to station where labor union telegraph operators have been working and in event of strike being called by the telegraph operators I agree to remain at the station where I am assigned and faithfully perform my duties for the said railroad company."

"I am to be governed by the said railway company's rules and regulations, which they now have or may place in effect from time to time."

Minimum Salary Stated.
"In accepting this position as telegraph operator for the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railway company it is understood that I am to be paid a salary of not less than sixty dollars per month and I am to receive steady increase of said amount in accordance with my ability."

"I am to be furnished transportation from Kansas City to the point where I am assigned to work. It is also agreed that I am to be given steady employment, provided I faithfully perform my duties."

"I agree to refrain from the excessive use of all intoxicating liquors while in the employ of the said Missouri, Kansas and Texas railway company."

"I agree while in the employ of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railway company not to join any labor union organization. Furthermore, I will do all in my power to prevent any labor trouble along the company's line."

Rockdale, Tex., Oct. 20.—Digging for entombed Mexican miners continues at the Vogel mine here. Those in charge of the rescue work hope to strike the tunnel at sixty-five feet before daylight.

The drill sent here by the State Mining board today for the purpose of making an opening for food and air in case any of the miners are alive was set to work at noon. It is now in solid rock at forty feet. No developments are expected before morning.

Pier for Longest Telescope.
Los Angeles, Oct. 20.—The concrete pier which will support the longest telescope in the world was completed today on the crest of Mount Wilson. The telescope, which will have a 100-inch lens, will improve the Carnegie solar observatory, which at present is supplied with a sixty-inch instrument. By means of the new glass it is predicted photographs of stars will be made which have heretofore been impossible.

CHAUNCEY GLOVER IS FOUND DEAD

SON FINDS HIS BODY, COLD IN DEATH, ON BATH ROOM FLOOR.

IN ILL HEALTH FOR MONTHS

Sudden Death of Prominent Citizen and Veteran Newspaper Man Is Shock to Relatives and Friends.

Chauncey J. Glover, aged 51 years, secretary-manager of the company publishing the Waco Times-Herald, was found dead in the bath room of his home, 1219 Washington street, shortly after 6 o'clock yesterday evening.

Mr. Glover was on the streets all day yesterday. He called at the places where he was accustomed to call from time to time, and was at his office yesterday afternoon. He had an appointment for 5 o'clock with some of the employees of his office to collaborate on some of the work. He did not keep the engagement and, just before 6 o'clock, his daughters called at the office in the car to take him home. As he was not there, his son, Chauncey J. Glover Jr., got in the car with his sisters and motored home. Reaching the residence, Chauncey told his sisters to wait and remarked, "I will go in and see if papa is at home."

"The young man searched the house and finally went to the bath room, where he found him on the floor dead. He was in ill health."

Mr. Glover had been in bad health for the past several months. During the early part of the year he went to Wooten Wells, hoping that it would benefit him. He had an idea that he was being helped by it and became so impressed with the water there that he bought an interest in the Wooten Wells property. However, his close friends had observed that his health had been failing gradually since he lost his wife a few months ago. He appeared to break under the bereavement, and since that time he had not given the close attention to business that he did before. Yesterday he was about town greeting his friends as he met them. He was in the Herz Bros. store about 5 o'clock and others saw him at different times.

Sketch of His Career.
Mr. Glover was born June 26, 1862. He was the son of Joe Glover, a pioneer merchant of Bastrop and at one time mayor of the town. When 20 years of age the young man moved to Belton, where he became a printer on the Belton Journal. Some time in the early '80s he became associated in the police business with Mr. Glover holding the business end of the paper and Mr. Robinson the editorial end. They had been associated in business from that time until the death of Mr. Glover.

Successful in Business.
The two were successful in their newspaper venture and the Belton Journal became one of the leading weekly newspapers in the state. Later they acquired the Belton Reporter and consolidated it with the Journal under the name of the Belton Journal-Reporter. This continued the Belton publication until 1898, when they bought a controlling interest in the Waco Times-Herald, quite a number of Waco business men taking some of the stock of the company when they first organized. As they prospered the interests and the income of the two men increased by the acquisition of the holdings of the scattered local stockholders, so that at the time of the death of Mr. Glover he, with George Robinson and Fred Robinson, were the principal owners in the property.

Wife Dies Recently.
March 4, 1884, Mrs. Glover was married to Miss Kittie Hughes of Belton. Mrs. Glover recently died in San Antonio. Three children survive them, Chauncey J. Glover Jr., Mrs. Davis Glover, Mr. Glover is survived also by Mrs. Ed Jenkins of Bastrop, Mrs. Kate Cunningham of Venice, Cal., Mrs. Frank Raymond of Austin, Mrs. Will Russell of Hillboro and Miss Laura Glover of Austin, sisters.

His Kindly Disposition.
The news of Mr. Glover's death was learned on the streets soon after the body was found, and it spread rapidly. He was widely known in Waco and in Texas. He was well liked. During his residence in Waco he acquired a circle of friends who extended to all classes of people and he was of that disposition that brought acquaintances closer to him as they knew him longer, and they became his friends. To those who were close to him there was no favor that he would refuse and he was ready to go to the greatest lengths to be of benefit and help to his friends. In his relations with his associates, he formed a bond of sympathy and friendship that continued during the many years they have been together. There was implicit reliance in his business judgment and in the conduct of his department of the newspaper.

Popular with Business Men.
It was as business manager that he came in close contact with the commercial interests of Waco, and through this method he secured strong relations that existed through many years. He had other interests than the newspaper. He was a genial fellow; he was social and directed his conversation more along the lines of pleasant thought than others who were wont to stand with those for whom he had a personal fancy on the streets and talk for long periods of time.

Arrangements for the funeral have not been completed, but the services will be held at 10 a. m. tomorrow at the residence. Rev. C. T. Caldwell, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, will officiate. The pall bearers will be announced today.

ACTION OF BRITISH MINISTER TO MEXICO DISPLEASES WILSON

Presents Credentials to Provisional President Huerta Day After Proclamation of "Dictator"—Washington Considers It an Affront

Washington, Oct. 20.—While there was no change in either the status of affairs at Mexico City or the American policy an international phase of the Mexican situation that attracted wide attention tonight was the formal inquiry made earlier today by Ambassador Page at London as to what was construed here as an unsympathetic attitude toward the United States by Sir Lionel Carden, the British minister to Mexico.

It is understood that the basis of the inquiry was a confidential report to the State department, the contents of which are known, however, that what particularly displeased both President Wilson and Secretary Bryan was the presentation by Sir Lionel of his credentials to Provisional President Huerta the very day after the United States proclaimed himself dictator.

The American government felt that Huerta's nullification of the Mexican constitution not only by his arrest of the legislative powers, but by his assumption of legislative powers, had so altered affairs in the Mexican capital that the British minister might have withheld his presentation of credentials.

Inquiry was directed to determine whether the British foreign office had instructed Sir Lionel to present his credentials notwithstanding Huerta's assumption of powers.

The explanation of the British foreign office noted in press dispatches that the presentation of the credentials was merely a coincidence and not antagonistic to the American point of view was not commented on by officials tonight.

Diplomatic circles interpreted the new development as strongly intimating to Europe the desire of the United States to have a free hand in dealing with the Mexican problem.

Villa Arouses Germany.
Mexico City, Oct. 20.—The holding of 43 Germans at Torreon by General Francisco Villa as hostages against an attack by the federal forces has aroused the German government to make strong demands upon the Mexican foreign office to insure their release.

General Villa permitted the Americans to depart from Torreon, but held the Germans, about the same number of French residents, ten or twelve British and several Spaniards, declaring that his purpose was to use them as a foil to the federalists from attacking the city. They also let it be known, according to advices received here that they would be sacrificed unless the action to retake Torreon was abandoned.

What action the foreign office proposes to take has not yet been demanded.

Import Duties Increased.
Mexico City, Oct. 20.—An increase of 50 per cent in practically all import duties will become effective October 25 by virtue of a decree by President Huerta, just published. Merchants and importers are making every effort to utilize the few remaining days to their advantage. Consumers generally are concerned over the prospect of a further advance in the already high prices prevailing.

Local Temperatures.
State of thermometer and barometer yesterday, as recorded by Dr. Block: Maximum 65, minimum 28 1/2, barometer 30.10, humidity 70. The total wind passage for the twenty-four hours ended at 9 p. m. was 90 miles, the highest velocity being 6 miles, between 10 and 11 p. m. Sunday.

Washington Forecast.
Washington, Oct. 20.—Forecast: Waco and vicinity—Fair and warm Tuesday; Wednesday, probably fair; light, variable winds.

West Texas—Generally fair Tuesday and Wednesday.

EVIDENCE SHOWS EATON POISONED

REAR ADMIRAL'S WIFE CHARGED WITH ADMINISTERING ARSENIC.

DRUG IS FOUND IN BODY

Harvard Experts Agree That Amount Indicates It Was Taken Himself.

Plymouth, Mass., Oct. 20.—Rear Admiral Joseph G. Eaton died from poison, at least one dose of which was administered within six or eight hours of his death, during which time, testimony showed, he was unconscious. This, the statement of medical experts, was the principal evidence introduced by the government in its efforts to support its charge that the admiral came to his death at the hands of his wife, Mrs. Jennie May Eaton, now on trial for her life.

That Mrs. Eaton had many times as to the time and manner of its administration was given by Prof. W. P. Whitney and Prof. W. M. Balch, both of the Harvard medical school. These experts, retained by the government, had analyzed the contents of the organs removed from the body of the admiral.

Sixteen grains of pure white arsenic were found and a greater amount was probably thrown off from the admiral's system before death, according to the testimony.

Find Poison in Body.
Testimony as to the finding of poison in the admiral's body and indications as to the time and manner of its administration was given by Prof. W. P. Whitney and Prof. W. M. Balch, both of the Harvard medical school. These experts, retained by the government, had analyzed the contents of the organs removed from the body of the admiral.

Both professors admitted under cross examination that the presence of a large quantity of arsenic has been accepted by experts as an indication that the poison was self-administered.

Claim Given Obedience.
District Attorney Albert Barker, in redirect examination, brought out testimony to show the poison might equally as well have been administered by some other person. It is the contention of the government that poison was given the admiral in tea and other beverages by his widow.

The defense failed today to secure any confirmation of their contention that the admiral used intoxicants freely and then resorted to drugs to overcome the after effects.

Mrs. Anna Driscoll of Rockland, a friend of the Eatons, testified to having stayed at the Eaton home for three months in 1912 at Mrs. Eaton's request, "to keep this feeble old man away from a woman who wants to get his money." She said Mrs. Eaton believed the admiral was insane and complained that he was always flirting with girls and women.

Mrs. Driscoll testified that she said that while she was at the Eaton home the admiral's habits were regular and orderly.

Wishes Admiral Dead.
Henry M. S. Shurtliff, a friend of the Eaton family, testified that Mrs. Eaton had expressed the wish at various times that the admiral was dead. She asked Cates, the witness continued, to come to the Eaton home on a number of occasions to protect himself. Following this advice he carried a pistol with him, he said, he found no occasion to use it. He testified that Mrs. Eaton had said, "Do not let the admiral get behind you," remarking that she thought the admiral "wasn't right in his head."

Charles Hilt, a neighbor of the Eatons in Assinippi, testified that he was told by Mrs. Eaton that she went to a doctor in an attempt to have the admiral declared insane. "But," Mr. Hilt said, "Mrs. Eaton told me that if anybody was crazy it was she."

Mr. Hilt declared that he had never seen the admiral intoxicated or under the influence of drugs.

From M. S. Shurtliff, of South Weymouth, a tradesman, came testimony that Mrs. Eaton had said the admiral placed poison in food she ate at a theater party in 1910 in Boston. Mr. Shurtliff added that Mrs. Eaton appeared to be so afraid that the admiral would poison the family food that she had extra locks attached to the pantry door at their summer home in Weymouth.

Miss Catherine Griffin of Boston testified that while employed as a housekeeper in May, 1912, in the Eaton home, Mrs. Eaton had accused her of making the admiral sick of taking advantage because he was crazy and of taking all his money.

"Mrs. Eaton has a bad temper," the witness testified.

Assistant District Attorney Fred G. Ketzmann stated tonight that the government expected to rest its case Thursday.

The defense, it was learned, will finish its presentation of evidence by Saturday night or Monday forenoon.

Discuss Mexican Situation.
London, Oct. 20.—Walter H. Page, United States ambassador, this afternoon discussed the situation in Mexico with the officials of the British foreign office.

The view of the British government is that the view of Sir Lionel Carden, the British ambassador to Mexico, is not antagonistic to the point of view of the United States and it is pointed out as merely a coincidence that Sir Lionel Carden presented his credentials simultaneously with Provisional President Huerta's proclamation of a dictatorship.

SULZER FOR RUN FOR ASSEMBLY

NOMINATED AT PROGRESSIVE CONVENTION IN NEW YORK CITY.

HE ISSUES STATEMENT

SAYS NEVER ANY DOUBT ABOUT SELECTION.

THINKS IT ALL FOR THE BEST

In Governor's Chair Could Do Nothing. Will Start Again Where He Was Twenty Years Ago.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 20.—A few minutes after the progressive convention that nominated him for assemblyman met in New York tonight, Wm. Sulzer issued a statement telling why he had "consented to come back to Albany."

Throughout the evening he was in communication by telephone with progressive leaders in New York. There never was a doubt but that he could have the nomination if he wanted it, he declared. Nor does he doubt that the first of January will see him back where he left his political career 20 years ago. He and his friends also are convinced that he will go from there to the speakership and thence back to the governor's chair.

Some time tomorrow Sulzer will go to New York. He will begin a campaign for the assembly immediately and speak day and night up to election time. After that he will accept some lecture engagements up to the first of January. He is necessary for him to come to Albany here he will arrive here on the opening day of the legislature to start the fight which he hopes will put him back in executive chair. His promise is to make "the star fly" if he is made an assemblyman.

"And not only will I make it warm for my enemies in the assembly," he declared, "I'll make them take notice in other places, too."

His statement follows in part:
"In view of the urgent pleadings from lifelong friends and the request in writing from more than half of the registered voters of the sixth assembly district, I have consented to accept the nomination for member of the assembly to further the cause of honest government. I have consented to come back to Albany as a member of the assembly for the good that I can do."

"I shall be a non-partisan candidate, having no axe to grind and no motive or purpose other than to do what I can for the cause of good government—the struggle for which accomplished the removal of the assembly from the governorship by an arrogant boss whose dictates do wrong I defied."

Sulzer agreed to run after consulting with a score of political advisers today. The rabbi of every synagogue in the sixth district called at the executive mansion today to urge Sulzer to make the race. They brought petitions signed by 2,900 voters in the district asking Sulzer to run. There are said to be only 5,700 voters in the entire district. Mrs. Sulzer urged him to accept the nomination.

Obviously Sulzer was well pleased with his nomination. He walked up and down his office in the mansion, smoking a cigar, smiling and telling how he intended to fight his enemies in the last ditch. He waved his call to a chair and began to tell how he regarded his removal as a possible real blessing in disguise.

Everything for Best.
"The Indians declare," he said, "that everything is for the best. I'm pretty much of that opinion. I've been out West fourteen times. Sometimes I think that's where I belong. People out there have written me since I started this fight against Tammany that if I were against them they would send me to the United States senate. I reckon I belong out there. I don't seem to get on very well in this effete East."

"But I started to say I thought maybe my removal was for the best. What could I do in the governor's chair now? Nothing. But I can lead a lot in the assembly and other places. I can carry out my reform there. I tried to carry it out in the governor's chair."

He was silent for a moment, walking the length of the room. Suddenly he stopped, closed his eyes and said: "Yes, sir; I tried so hard that I lost my job."

There were simultaneous rings at the door and telephonic bells. People were begging to call and congratulate him. He prepared to retreat.

"I'll see you here in January," he said, and he disappeared into his study with the injunction that he not be disturbed.

Against Leader's Wishes.
New York, Oct. 20.—The nomination of Wm. Sulzer, impeached governor of New York, as assemblyman from the sixth district, has aroused about the desires of the state and county leaders of the progressive party. The sentiment among the progressives throughout the state and in other states was generally against the move, according to State Chairman Theodore Douglas Robinson and County Chairman Francis W. Bird.

Mr. Bird, in a letter to Mr. Steindler before the meeting began, cautioned him

Another Picture of Houston Is Taken From the Capitol

Austin, Tex., Oct. 20.—It developed today that since the picture of Sam Houston was taken from the senate chamber by Artist Boris Gordon of Houston and the picture of Senator Joseph Bailey substituted that another picture of Sam Houston, owned by T. D. DeShields and which had been loaned the State, had been taken from the building. The picture had been placed in the State library, but following the dispute with Gordon over the ownership of the larger Sam Houston picture Mr. DeShields came to Austin and had his picture removed and shipped to his home. The picture of Sam Houston which hung in the senate chamber was owned jointly by Mr. DeShields and Mr. Gordon, but Mr. Gordon has recently purchased Mr. DeShields' interest and according to superintendent of public buildings and grounds, the picture is now locked up in one of the buildings of the capital pending the orders of Mr. Gordon.

It is understood that a movement is on foot to purchase the picture of Sam Houston and present it to the State to be hung in the capitol.

regarding the "unwisdom of nominating Mr. Sulzer."

"Of course, it is a fundamental progressive principle that the settled will of the people in any district should govern in the making of nominations," Mr. Bird wrote. "Progressives everywhere will recognize that the committee must perform its duty in accordance with the settled will of the people of that district."

However, Mr. Bird pointed out, although 3,200 voters in all parties, as he was informed, out of a total of 6,000 voters, had signed a petition favoring Mr. Sulzer's nomination, such a nomination "if brought about in this way would be more of a neighborhood than a party nomination. It would not be a strictly progressive designation but a nomination by the voters of all the parties in the district using the vacancy that happens to be on the progressive ticket for their purpose."

After Mr. Sulzer had been nominated tonight there was a demonstration in the east side meeting hall. Bands in the street outside played national airs. The nomination was made unanimous.

Wilson In Politics But Three Years

Washington, Oct. 20.—Today is a unique anniversary for President Wilson, for just three years ago he left the academic life he had led for twenty years and entered the political arena. October 20, 1910, "President Wilson," for he was titled as the head of Princeton University, appeared before the board of trustees and read his letter of resignation inspired, as he said, because the democratic party of New Jersey nominated me for the office of governor of the state and I deemed it my duty to accept the nomination. In view of Princeton's immemorial observance of the obligation of public service, I could not have done otherwise.

After presenting his resignation, Mr. Wilson started on a wide, sweeping tour of the state. That evening he went to Flemington, N. J., where Joseph Patrick Tumulty, then an assemblyman in the New Jersey legislature, spoke from the same platform. It was Mr. Wilson's first meeting with the man who was destined not only to be his private secretary as governor of New Jersey, but as president of the United States. Tumulty's forceful speech impressed Mr. Wilson and they traveled together frequently after that.

According to the last report, the capital stock is $200,000, surplus $75,000 and deposits $3,531,000. President Clarence Nelson said the bank's closing was due to a combination of circumstances and that "the marked decline in the market value of bonds held by the bank was an important factor."

Statement of Road President.

President W. W. Finley of the Mobile and Ohio believes that the troop train plunked twenty-four feet in the Ruhe Burrows creek, because the front wheels of the engine tender left the track before reaching the trestle. His statement issued through the general offices here tonight says:

"The wheels broke practically every tie in the center (of the trestle) when the ties were cut, the track spread, resulting in the train toppling over and carrying the trestle with it. A careful examination does not indicate that the track was in any way defective prior to the accident.

"The greater number of deaths occurred among men riding in the baggage car due to the shifting of baggage," continued Mr. Finley.

"Other deaths were principally among those in the rear of the second coach, which was telescoped for about fifteen feet when the cars went over the trestle. There were no serious injuries to those occupying the last coach."

The tender toppled over with the rest of the train, but the engine remained on the rails. All of the injured soldiers have been removed to Mobile as also were the bodies of the dead.

SUGARLAND ROAD WINS CASE

Judge Wilcox Hands Down Decision Against State in Case Pertaining to Line Extension.

Austin, Tex., Oct. 20.—Judge Charles Wilcox of the twenty-sixth district court today handed down a decision against the State in the suit styled State of Texas versus Sugarland Railroad for penalties totalling $5000 and mandatory injunction.

The case was filed on July 2, 1911. Previous to this date the Sugarland Railroad had extended its line from a point three miles from Arcola Junction, the original end of the road, to a point 18 miles south of the connecting point of the International & Great Northern and the Santa Fe. This left a spur of three and one-half miles from the point of divergence of the extension to Arcola Junction.

In 1911 the railroad applied to the Railroad Commission for permission to tear up this spur. This was granted and work begun. After all but a short distance had been torn up the Railroad Commission revoked its decision and sent out an order to stop the work of tearing up the line. Later the Railroad Commission ordered the railroad company to rebuild the track which had been torn up. This the company refused to do and the case was put in the hands of the district court.

Jewel P. Lightfoot, for a suit involving penalties and a mandatory injunction compelling the railroad to rebuild the line.

It developed in the testimony that one citizen would have been served by the order of the Railroad Commission to rebuild the abandoned track and he could get better service by a short haul. The track was useless according to the plaintiffs. It would have cost $40,000 to construct the line and $10,000 annually to maintain, while the revenue would not amount to enough to pay the manager.

Assistant Attorney General Luther Nichols appeared for the State and J. F. Walters, Jonathan P. Lane and W. T. Eldridge of Houston for the plaintiffs.

FINE ACT ON PART OF SON TO FATHER

Northern Man Who Came to Texas to Live Goes Back With Vitalitas Supply.

"Yes, I will go back to St. Paul in a few weeks. I believe I will be all right now," said Mr. R. C. Bactell, who came to Texas some months ago for his health and with plans for remaining permanently if the climate agreed with him. He owns a tract of land near Houston.

"My home doctors told me I could not stay in St. Paul, owing to my rheumatism, which was getting up toward my heart. I came to Texas because I have a son here and he believed it was the place for me.

"I don't think this country is much better for rheumatism than Minnesota, for it is so damp here, even if it is mild and warm. I got better for a time and then got back into my old shape. One knee and one hip was the worst. My son had been taking Vitalitas and he brought me a bottle. It surely was a fine act on the part of my boy. It has taken the rheumatism all out of me and I have the feeling that it is gone to stay. My interests are all in St. Paul and my kin and friends are there. I am going to take some Vitalitas along with me. I feel better and younger than I have in years."

Vitalitas dissolves all toxic poisons in the system, cleanses the liver and kidneys and puts new vital force into every weakened organ and function. Indigestion, rheumatism, catarrh, nervous debility, impotency, bowel and blood disorders are overcome and banished by its use.

Episcopalians Elect

FOUR MISSIONARY BISHOPS ARE CHOSEN BY HOUSE OF BISHOPS.

Committee Will Be Named to Make Investigation of Business Methods of the Church.

New York, Oct. 20.—The Protestant Episcopal church, in convention, was called upon today to demand a "more equitable distribution and a just return for the workers." A resolution to this effect introduced in the house of deputies by Bathbone Gardner, a lay delegate from Providence, R. I., was one of the most radical the convention has to deal with along this line. The deputies referred the resolution to a committee on social service.

The house of deputies adopted a resolution providing for the appointment of a committee to make a general investigation of business methods of the church. Four missionary bishops of the Protestant Episcopal church were elected today by the house of bishops at the general convention of the Episcopal church of North America, which is in session at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel in New York City.

Bishop of Spokane, W. B. Capers, of Columbia, Tenn.; bishop of Cuba, Marlow H. Gates, of New York City; bishop of New Mexico, F. C. Howden, of Georgetown, D. C.

The action of the house of bishops must be ratified by the house of deputies before the new bishops are appointed, but it is practically certain that the choice made by the former body will be allowed to stand.

Dr. Burleson, chosen for bishop of North Dakota, is secretary of the church board of missions, with headquarters in this city. Dr. Capers is principal of the Columbia Institute for Girls at Columbia, Tenn. Dr. Milo H. Gates is vicar of the church of the Intercession of New York City. Dr. Howden is rector of St. John's church at Georgetown.

The Very Rev. Charles Blaney Colmore, dean of the Cathedral, Havana, Cuba, was selected by the house of bishops as bishop of Pacific.

The house of deputies considered the support of its clerical men. A pension plan was submitted by Monell Sayre of New York as a result of the preliminary report of the joint committee appointed to take this matter up, a resolution was adopted continuing the commission with power to become a corporation and put into operation a pension plan covering the entire territory of the Episcopal church. The maximum pension will be $2,000 and the minimum $1,000. It was stated authoritatively today that the general convention which was to have closed next Saturday, will continue its session following week owing to the amount of important legislation yet to be considered.

FROST STRUCK SOFTLY

DAMAGE IN LOWLANDS AROUND WACO TRIVIAL, REPORT SAYS.

First Frost of the Season Will Have Little if Any Effect on Cotton in McLennan County.

Although there were indications of a light frost in the lowlands about Waco yesterday morning, it was not heavy enough to be classed as a killing frost, and cotton men are of the opinion that it will have very little effect on the McLennan county crop.

A frost at this time heavy enough to kill high vegetation would break all the records for McLennan county. The earliest killing frost in the history of the past nineteen years came on November 1. Last year the record date was equaled. The average date is November 15.

Little Damage Done.

There was practically no damage from frost in the open prairie and hill lands of the county. Although in the lowlands and river bottoms there was enough light frost to wither the new blooms on the cotton plants, it did no harm the bolls upon which depends whatever new crop is to be gathered.

Early Snow in Years.

With snow flurries the earliest in many years reported from a number of widely separated points the south and west experienced the first wintry weather of the season yesterday and last night after a week of comparatively high temperatures.

Snow flurries were reported as far south as Atlanta, Ga., and Birmingham, Ala., yesterday morning. Snow fell during the day in Chicago and last night at Louisville, Ky.

In the central west flurries were also reported at Terre Haute, Ind., and Houghton, Mich. A light fall was noted in the Carolinas and at Nashville and Chattanooga, Tenn.

In western Tennessee the wintry weather came with a raw wind and cold rain.

In the southwest snow was reported in the Ozark Mountains of South-eastern Missouri and Northwest Arkansas, while freezing temperatures prevailed generally over Missouri, Kansas and Northern Oklahoma, with a light frost extending into Northern Texas. Alma, in Crawford County, Ark., was the most southern town in that state reporting a snow fall.

At 7 o'clock last night Chicago reported a temperature of 36 degrees, the low mark of the day. Louisville, Ky., and Nashville, Tenn., made the same report while Chattanooga, Tenn., was two degrees warmer. At Montgomery, Ala., Fort Smith, Ark., and Oklahoma City, the mercury stood at 46 degrees, several degrees above the low mark for the day. In Texas, Ft. Worth reported 55 degrees at 7 p. m. Amarillo 53; Corpus Christi, 64; Galveston 69; San Antonio 64, and El Paso 70. The lowest for the day at San Antonio was 42; Galveston 48; Corpus Christi 50, and El Paso 44.

At St. Louis the 7 p. m. reading 40, was the highest of the day, 6 degrees above the lowest mark.

At Kansas City the temperature fell to 26 during the day, but at 7 o'clock last night the thermometer showed 42.

Snow at Peoria.

Peoria, Ill., Oct. 20.—The first snow of the season began falling at Peoria at noon today. Snow is falling over a large part of the Illinois valley.

Freezing in Kansas and Missouri.

Kansas City, Oct. 20.—Freezing temperatures, the first of the season, prevailed over Missouri, Kansas and Northern Oklahoma early today, and a light frost extended into Northern Texas. Ice formed all over Western Missouri. Snow fell in Eastern Missouri.

Accidents Account of Snow.

Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 20.—Blinded by the driving rain and a thirty-six-mile wind, five persons walked in front of automobiles tonight and two of them received fatal injuries. Miss Mary Costello, 45, was thrown against the curb and her skull fractured. She died on the way to a hospital. Wm. Kept, 50, also thrown against a curb, sustained scalp wounds, a broken leg and internal injuries.

Shortly before midnight the rain changed to snow and then to sleet, which froze as it fell.

Snow at Louisville.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 20.—A light fall of snow was recorded this morning in eastern and central Kentucky. Trenton reported a fall of two inches and in several other places the ground was covered with one inch or more. The earliest fall of snow previously recorded in this state was October 17, nearly five years ago. There was a rapid fall in temperature tonight and freezing weather generally over the state is forecast for tomorrow morning. Snow began falling in Louisville tonight.

COTTON SOARS AT OPENING

Cold Wave Sweeping South Puts Prices Up $2 a Bale Early in Day.

New Orleans, Oct. 20.—The cold wave now sweeping through the south put the price of cotton up almost $2 a bale soon after the market opened this morning. It was evident that many of the buying orders received by local brokers had accumulated over Sunday. On the first call there was a rush to buy, and amid more excitement than the market has seen for months prices mounted swiftly.

The opening was irregular, the trading months showing a gain of 24 to 48 points over Saturday's close. They soon went to a level of 26 to 42 points up before profit-taking by the longs became heavy enough to cause a reaction. This wild rise brought out selling orders for both accounts, and the market reacted 12 to 15 points. The downward movement was not well maintained, as the detailed reports from the weather bureau made the situation over the belt look worse than did the weather map. Fear that great damage would result to the cotton crop in the Atlantic as the cold wave works eastward caused renewed buying, and put prices up to about the highest levels again.

Big Gains in New York Market.

New York, Oct. 20.—Apprehensions of serious damage to the crop caused a big advance in the cotton market this morning. The opening was 27 to 33 points higher on an excited general buying movement, which carried December contracts up to 12.75, or $4.50 per bale above the low level of last week. Reports of weather conditions

Youth Is Fined For Violation of the Wireless Law

New York, Oct. 20.—Elmer R. Myers, a Brooklyn youth, who set up a wireless plant on the roof of his home without first securing a federal license to do so, was fined $50 by United States Judge Mayer today for violation of the radio act passed last June by congress. He is said to be the first defendant under this law. His machine, according to the complaint, was tuned in pitch with the big government stations along the Atlantic coast and several of his messages were interrupted, leading to discovery of his plant.

The law forbids unlicensed operators picking up messages sent ashore from ships or from one state to another.

CAMERON PARK A JOY ALL YEAR ROUND

Truly Keats anticipated our Cameron park when he penned the line, "A thing of beauty is a joy forever." Cameron park is indeed a beauty, and that it is a joy forever is too true. In the spring we enjoy the beauty of budding nature; in the summer it is perfect nature and the refreshing breezes; in the autumn it is the brilliant foliage, while in the winter it is a joy just to see the bare trees silhouetted against the pearly sky. Nature, all the time, and nature enjoyed every day in the year at Cameron park.

THE WOMEN'S PARADE TO BE LIVING MODEL SHOW

Really, the passing show of living models in the woman's parade will be worth the study. No silk skirts with monkeys beneath are yet entered, but instead, there will be women's fashions from ancient times up to today. The Press club will show women in the dress of Bible times. The Shakespeare club will give us women of the middle ages. The Henry Downes chapter will show dames of 1776. The Mary Wescott chapter will have Southwestern belle in long skirts and bonnet. And thus it will go until the most up-to-date creations appear upon the women who ride in their individually decorated cars. Really, this will be an educational as well as a spectacular procession.

NOTICE IS HERE GIVEN FOR COTTON PALACE ENTRIES

So many inquiries are coming that it is deemed advisable to give this notice. Every woman who has anything, decoration, entry, anything to go into the Cotton Palace, she is reminded to hold the same. Each chairman will give newspaper notice as to time she will receive entries for her department, and the place for delivery; also the hours. Mrs. Baas, as general chairman, also the special chairmen, request that all heed this notice. Presumably the days for receiving will be the first of the week in which the Palace opens. Announcement is also made that if a piece is to be insured, this must be done by the individual who enters it before it is placed with the Cotton Palace chairman.

A HINT FOR WOMEN WHICH THEY MUST HEED

The night school is now opening. This is free. The hours are not long, so arranged that pupils can get a refreshing rest after the day's toil. This is for those who are compelled to work and yet feel the desire for education. Why the women of the city take an interest? Go down to shop any day and you will note how many girls and boys are employed, how many are thus deprived of an education. Perhaps some of these can not even read. They may never attain a real education, but certainly some knowledge of the simple rules of arithmetic, and to read and spell well, will mean higher wages. So, if there is any woman who feels the deprivation of this kind, why not while shopping mention the subject of the night school, and encourage that child to attend. This is doing some good in the world, for perhaps the mother of that child is indifferent.

A WORD OF EXPLANATION FOR THE WOMEN AT LARGE

We are so weary of hearing "Oh, no, I am not a club woman; I stay at home and attend to my children." What is a club woman, we would like to ask? She is a woman who looks out into life, knows what is good for her own household and those in it and endeavors to enlarge that good. Really, a woman does not forfeit all right of respectability when she broadens her heart and mind, so that it is good to some one further on than her own loved ones. Again, there are many women who have no home responsibility. Perhaps their children are all married; perhaps these are at college; or perhaps she is a single woman, who has the mother heart for the neglected home and child. Again, it may be women who realize their responsibility to make the world better for their having had a place in it, and opportunity. These are club women. They may be the exceptions. Was there never a church woman who is a backslider? Was there never a woman who defamed her sex by extreme fashions? Of course this is true. Human nature is human nature; always there is the one who calls criticism upon the many. The club women of this city have done what? The story is really too old to repeat. They have supported the formative sentiment which resulted in our library. Is this going beyond woman's sphere? They have created the sentiment which secured our beautiful parks. Is this going beyond woman's sphere? They have sold hundreds of dollars in Red Cross stamps as assistance to the hopelessly incurable. Is this unwomanly? They have brought refining entertainment to Waco. Is this unwomanly? But enough. The story, as we say, is old. We simply want just a few more women to hear it, and then become club women, or forever hold their peace about being home women. One more result has come to club life. The women have broadened. They have come to know one another, and to feel a common interest in our city. The meeting at the library on Saturday is the result of that broadening among women which the club women began. The idea of selfishness never occurs to a club woman. In that meeting was Jew and Gentile, Catholic and Protestant, Italian, German, Irish and Bohemian. The fraternal, the patriotic, the philanthropic, the artistic, and this was not the half of what was represented. There were women from the South and women from the North. There were women who grace the highest social circle of Waco, and women who walk the path of business. There were teachers and there were society belles. It was all Waco, and every woman was in sympathy with the endeavors of every other woman. This is something of the spirit which the broadening influence of the club has brought about. And, think what the possibility is, when such a spirit of common interest prevails. Be a home woman, as you say you are, and you are narrow. You live among your own and have only your own narrow outlook upon life. Mix with your fellow women and you learn to enter into their thoughts, at least to understand their motives. The higher give strength to the lower, and the lower look upward to better living. This is the true value of the clubs. Then, when that common interest is aroused, see what a mighty force is set into motion. Do you believe this wonderful woman's parade could ever have taken the proportion it now has had every woman remained within the walls of her home, never met other women, never reached out to do better things? No, each would have remained her so-called unpolished skirts about her and remained forever a selfish, narrow piece of femininity.

Another thing is noted. Women, all over Waco, will telephone to say, "Why do not the club women do this, and why do not the club women do that?" It never seems to occur to anybody else should become active. A little handful of progressive women as club women are can not assume the entire control of affairs. They can not run the school, beautify the city, found charitable institutions and conduct them, attend to all the hospitality calls when strangers arrive, see that the humane law is kept to the letter, keep the vacant lots immaculate, organize and promote a servants' bureau, and so on. They could if every woman in the city would become a club woman. Why not the women who take the interest in one move begin to arouse sentiment along that line? Very soon those to whom the idea appeals will let it be known, and something tangible will come. Then the good may be done. So, women of Waco, cease saying you are not a club woman, you stay at home. The more shame on you. You reap all the benefit from what the club women do, and you look to the club women to accomplish good; why not do your part, since you receive your share of the good?

Society Notes.

It is one of the small things with large results when it comes to laying a cherry or two upon our grape fruit as it appears on the table. The dash of color pleases the eye.

Had you noted that the Cotton Palace directors are to give these daily hand concerts during the Cotton Palace season? This will be acceptable to many here at home who will take advantage of the quiet of the morning to hear good music. But the greatest pleasure must come to the aggressive majority of women who are forced to leave before the evening concerts.

The militant policy of Mrs. Pankhurst and her expulsion from our country naturally leads one to imagine a woman of robust physique and aggressive manner. On the other hand, those who have seen the lady report her very quiet in demeanor and a petite little figure. By the way, when Mrs. Pankhurst was not allowed to land, wonder who ate the banquet dishes which had been prepared in her honor?

Now if a woman has a French hair dressing, and she wishes to get the worth of her money, all she has to do is to buy a wire cap, covered with stiff cloth, and sleep in it, at least, try to sleep. What is the matter with sitting up all night and save the expense of the cap?

The pleasurable anticipation is that Mrs. Frank Baird will come from Buffalo for a winter visit with her mother, Mrs. Flora Cameron.

Mrs. A. W. Koch thinks if her booth in the women's department of the Cotton Palace should be called a "Woman's Exchange" instead of the "Call for the Women," it would be better understood what she desires. So the women can act accordingly. If any has a piece suitable to place in an old-fashioned woman's exchange, this is suitable for Mrs. Koch.

The special cards for the women to use in connection with their Cotton Palace day are now about ready to be distributed. Miss Ida Orand will so plan that some of these are presented to every home. In the meantime, about Wednesday, Mrs. Baas announces that the public library desk, these are free. The only obligation is that each woman will feel sufficient interest to send the cards to friends within the distance who may attend. It is especially desired that all women who attend the Waco fair, secure the woman's post card, and distribute on the trains and at the fair.

Have you ordered your groceries early this morning? If not, do so today and tomorrow and every day, until the habit is formed. This is a system in the household and humanity to maid, groceryman and the delivery horse.

By the way, do you keep step to the right when you are on your downtown promenade? You must do this, now the Cotton Palace rush is coming.

The beauty parlors are now changing their phraseology. They do not say anything about skin treatment, but talk glibly about "vitalizing the complexion."

It is said that everybody has restaurant dinners in Paris. Our American cities are come so far into the custom that we see advertised special design of gowns for restaurant wear.

A man was arrested on Saturday for cruelly beating a cow through the street. And a woman arrested him. What is more, the woman does not feel that she unsexed herself in the least. The animal was being driven and beaten to death by the brute of a man. Is it unwomanly to protect such brutality?

The pleasurable curiosity now is, how will each woman decorate her vehicle for the woman's parade? Suppose we do not tell one single soul what we expect to have for a little while. Let us be one glad surprise.

How is this for a clever music story?

"I desire," said a young woman from the country, entering a music shop in town the other day, "to purchase a piece of music for my little nephew, who plays on the piano."

"Here, miss, is precisely what you want, for 25 cents," said the clerk.

"Only 25 cents? Why, he's much further advanced than that, for last month he played the piano with 50 cents. Haven't you something at 75?"

We frequently see fashion notes said to be from Mrs. Ralston. It is interesting to know who the lady is. She has been on the fashion staff of the great Wannamaker store in Philadelphia. In order to be the best, she studied under Whistler in Paris, and also in the great Prado in Madrid. So with her natural originality in designing, this woman makes our American fashions real works of art. We hear so much these days about artistic, and flowing and erect lines, that this study under great masters becomes necessary.

WRECK RECALLS DIZZY RIDE

City Commissioner Foster Tells of His Experiences on a Runaway Train in 1871.

Forty-two years ago City Commissioner J. W. Foster, as conductor on a troop train carrying United States soldiers, barely escaped a disastrous wreck at the same point where the Baltimore and Ohio troop train went into a disabled bridge near State Line, Miss. Sunday, killing seventeen men and dangerously wounding a number of others.

Mr. Foster ran on that road for ten years from 1868 to 1878. Reading an account of the wreck of the troop train, in the Morning News yesterday morning called to his mind an occurrence which narrowly missed being a disastrous wreck when he was in charge of a train carrying soldiers over the same road and at the same point, years ago.

"In 1871 I was coming down the same hill where Sunday's wreck occurred," he said. "I was conductor of a train carrying soldiers, and the United States soldier was supreme in that country. I noticed something unusual in the manner the train was running and went to the engineer's cab. There I found the engineer drinking whiskey. He told me he had racoonation and was drinking whiskey with poke-berries in it for his affliction. I warned him to be careful and not drink, as if anything happened to the train we might all be shot."

"We just started down the hill, near where Sunday's wreck occurred, when the train cut in two, that is, a coach and the caboose became uncoupled from the remainder of the train. Down the hill we sped, the engine with what we expect to have, in an effort to prevent the wild cars from catching and crashing into us. We crossed bridges and went around hills in record time. Finally level ground was reached and the train again coupled up. I have always believed that but for the excellent work of my men that troop train would have gone into the ditch and another wreck would have been chalked up, one that was as serious if not more serious than that of Sunday."

Mr. Foster is now conductor on the Katy and member of the city commission.

BAYLOR AFTER PELICANS.

Seventeen Baylor football warriors left here yesterday at noon over the I. & G. N. in the hope of taking a few scalps from the Pelicans of Louisiana State University at Baton Rouge and the Razorbacks of Arkansas at Fayetteville. The Louisiana game will be played Wednesday and that with Arkansas Saturday.

Having had their greatest weaknesses exhibited to them in the contest with the University of Texas last Thursday, the Baylor boys have sought to mend the weakest points and feel like they will be able to make a much better showing on the road this week than they did last. They have their new plays down better now than they did last week, when they suffered from stake fright at first and then did not fight as hard as they might after a big score had been rolled up against them.

Accompanying the team on the trip which will be made in a sleeper furnished by the I. & G. N., were Graduate Manager C. A. Gantt and Student Manager Carter Grinstead.

WAITING ON STOUGH

TIME GIVEN HIM FOR TAKING UP FRANCHISE HALF EXPIRED.

Natural Gas Man Was Expected Here Days Ago—Smith Ready to Accept Grant.

Although fifteen days of the thirty allotted to George W. Stough to formally accept the franchise granted him by the city of Waco authorizing him to pipe natural gas through the streets and alleys have passed, neither Mr. Stough nor any of his associates has accepted the franchise. This fact is causing comment on the part of various persons interested.

Under the terms of the franchise applied for by Mr. Stough, which names E. A. Wilder of Mexico as an associate, and which was granted by the city commission at a meeting two weeks ago, Mr. Stough was to accept the franchise within thirty days after passage. Half of that time has passed.

Some days ago Mayor James H. Mackey was informed over the long distance telephone by Mr. Wilder that he expected Mr. Stough to return to Waco last week, naming Wednesday as the day. Officials of the city were on the lookout for him, but he failed to reach here. According to the best information obtainable by the officials, Mr. Stough is in the east preparing plans for carrying out the provisions of the franchise. He wired Mayor Mackey some days ago from Kansas City that he expected to hear from parties in eastern cities within a few days in regard to the matter. Since that time no official knowledge of his activities or whereabouts have come to the mayor or members of the commission.

Smith Ready to Take It. T. F. Smith, mayor of Mexico, and interested in gas fields of that vicinity, has an application for franchise pending before the commission. His application followed that of Mr. Stough, and he has asked that the application be kept before the commission, and that in the event the Stough franchise is not accepted, or the provisions of the franchise are not carried out that his application be acted upon.

The case will be tried at the December term of the twenty-sixth district court of Travis county.

Ft. W. & D. Fireman Killed. Amarillo, Tex., Oct. 20.—Ereman Leonard Branch, 30, died here this morning as a result of a wreck just north of here last night on the Fort Worth & Denver. Conductor Batsman was seriously hurt, out may recover. The wreck was due to a break between the engine and tender.

STREET RAILWAY IS EXEMPT

Traction Companies Do Not Come Under Provision of Employee's Compensation Act.

Austin, Tex., Oct. 20.—Street railway companies are exempt from the provisions of the employee's compensation act, according to the decision of the Industrial Accident board today. Ranches were also declared exempt.

The following ruling was given out: "Where an employer, corporation or otherwise, operates a number of plants of a like industry, and these plants are entirely disconnected as to the work of their employees and there is no interchange of employees between the plants, then it is optional with such employer to insure all of said plants or any one of them. This rule is non-applicable to a contractor carrying on more than one contract at the same time."

THAT "POLITICAL LYNCHING"

Even Judge Cullen, perhaps the strongest jurist of the New York bench, who presided at the Sulzer trial, concerning the acts for commission of which two-thirds of the court removed Sulzer from the governorship, went the length of saying that had these acts been committed by Sulzer during his tenure he would be unfit to hold public office.

Sulzer was convicted of the charge of falsifying his campaign funds statement—a violation of the corrupt practices act that also involved a false oath or perjury. After submitting this false account he took the oath of office, swearing to uphold the laws of the State which gave him the highest honor of public office. Sulzer was convicted of the charge of suppressing, by threats, evidence that was sought by a committee of the legislature. This last during his tenure of office.

We have never offered the least denial of Sulzer's cry that these impeachment proceedings were instigated by the boss of Tammany and carried through by Tammany's dependents and cohorts in office, in revenge for Sulzer's "defection." One does not deny a matter of common knowledge, if he has the least claim to sense. Sulzer, with his accustomed aptitude for reaching the people by striking phrases, terms his removal a "political lynching." Well, it was that. Let it even be said the real cause of the lynching—the Murphy-Sulzer break—was political. But the court's reason for the lynching was not political; it was legal and moral. Sulzer was not politically lynched into falsifying his campaign funds account and swearing to it. He was not politically lynched into the coercion and intimidation of which he was convicted in connection with the Frawley inquiry. And the legal reason for removal is what most concerns the people of the State of New York—for in that reason it is written that Sulzer is unfit to hold the State's chiefest office and honor.

Sulzer better accept one of those fat offers for lecture dates that were played up so cheaply at the gathering about the "people's house" the other night, if he has regard only for the condition of his finances—but we hope he will not accept, and he will not, if he has regard for decency and the "people" whose champion he affects to be. It is what Sulzer did, not what Murphy did, that justified the court in its verdict. Murphy's wrong and Sulzer's wrong do not constitute Sulzer's misfeasances a right.

Make the Program Imperative.

When I do design it will be to seek a resting place six feet in the soil. When I die the capital it will be to shoulder a rifle and take my place in the ranks to fight the rebels—Huerta.

Well? Madero's end for Huerta would more than justify the means that were employed to Madero's end, think thousands. Who begrudges Huerta six feet of soil whether his descent thereto follows resignation or—and this seems the only way—an involuntary removal a la Mexico?

Campaign funds and liquor, by federal law, are not legitimate objects of interstate commerce. Contraband liquor shipped from a wet State into a dry may do much to promote the latter's drouth, but tabooring wet-dry interstate shipment of campaign funds will increase the dryness many fold—especially during campaigns.

COLLECTING THE INCOME TAX.

An article by Mr. S. R. Wrightington, an attorney of Boston, in Rollins' Magazine, is quoted by Baltimore Sun in explanation of the proposed method of collecting the income tax—of which tax, it says, "the principle is simple enough, but long and complicated sections were made necessary to provide against evasion." The underlying principles as stated by Mr. Wrightington are:

1. That everyone with an income over $3000 shall pay 1 per cent of that income to the Federal Government.
2. That so far as practicable the Government will collect the tax from the source of that income, thus dealing with an impartial person less likely to risk the penalties of evasion.
3. That although each person's tax may be collected from more than one source, it is the intention of the act to levy but one tax on an income of $20,000 or less.
4. That an additional tax at a graduated rate be imposed on incomes over $20,000.

Incomes from State and municipal bonds and obligations of the United States are not taxable, according to Mr. Wrightington's interpretation. Salaries of State and city officers and certain Federal officers are exempt. In making his return of net income for assessment the taxpayer, in Mr. Wrightington's opinion may deduct from the gross income necessary expenses actually paid in carrying on any business, not including personal, living or family expenses, interest paid on indebtedness, taxes, uninsured losses in trade or by fire, storm or shipwreck, claims charged off as worthless, depreciation of property used in business, dividends on stock in corporations themselves subject to the tax and income taxed at the source. All are entitled to the minimum exemption of $3000, and a married man or woman whose wife or husband has not also a taxable income is entitled to an exemption of $1000 or more, or $4000 in all.

But every person who has an income of $3000 or over is required to make a sworn return to the Collector of Internal Revenue. Failure to receive a return blank does not mean that one will escape the tax. The law provides heavy penalties for those who fail to make returns.

The corporation tax feature that has excited most controversy is that providing for payment at the source. Representative Hull, author of the law, states that the corporation must withhold the tax and turn it over to the government whether the names of holders of bonds or stock are known or not. It lies with the owners to claim exemption, if they are entitled to it. Its framers were determined that no loophole should be left through which tax-dodgers could escape.

There Are Models and Models.

R. L. Stevenson became a writer by playing the sedulous ape to Hazlitt, to Lamb, to Wordsworth, to Sir Thomas Browne, to Defoe, to Hawthorne—Sir Sidney Lee, University of London.

This should be cheering to the high school pupil (we rather like "pupil") whose ambition to write well survives the fussiness of some teachers who can't write well. Let him learn, but occasionally ignore, his grammar. It should also comfort the college youth who does not do so well with his daily theme. It were easier for him to remember the style of some successful writer in whose product he is interested than to saturate his cerebrum with rhetoric and the garnishes of the faculty from the field of literature as a whole. But let the striver at "fine" writing give due heed to the patterns of Robert Louis's apedom. Let him even note that a professor of English in London University gives place to an American author with the sparkling Lamb and the inimitable Defoe. Let him cleave to old models, deriving nothing from Meg Corelli, Bob Chambers—or even Hank James.

MEN OF THE PEN.

Since the birth of the republic, since the election of George Washington, the first president of the United States, men of the pen have never received the political recognition that has been extended them by President Wilson.

Two more literary gentlemen will be assigned to important posts in Europe, comments the Memphis Commercial Appeal.

Editor Pindell of the Peoria Journal will be sent to St. Petersburg, where he will represent the United States in the court of the czar, while Brand Whitlock, mayor of Toledo, Ohio, editor and man of letters, will go to Belgium.

"President Wilson has selected his foreign corps with the greatest care and he has given men of the pen the choice of foreign posts. When he selected Secretary Daniels for the naval department the first editor was honored. Here the press was dignified with a cabinet appointment. Ambassador Page was selected from the ranks of American writers and publishers to go to the court of St. James. Augustus Thomas, newspaper reporter, editor, writer of novels and plays, was asked to serve as ambassador to France. Thomas Nelson Page, a writer dear to the south, a true Virginian, whose stories of southern life have made him famous, was asked to serve as ambassador to Italy, and so it has been since President Wilson entered office.

He is the first president since the days of Washington who has selected to dignify the press and men of letters. He has not done this with the hope of gaining favorable criticism, but because he has recognized the ability of the men he has selected to represent the United States in the most important courts of Europe.

In the selection of Editor Pindell, President Wilson has once more shown his wisdom. Pindell has been a faithful worker in the trenches of democracy. He has used his best brains and ability to promote the democratic cause. He did this without asking for reward or recognition. He did it because he was a Democrat. It is related that the appointment came as a surprise. It has been known for some time, however, that Senator J. Hamilton Lewis has been his staunch supporter, and when Senator Lewis desires to be heard all dogs cease to bark.

The mission to St. Petersburg presents some serious problems, problems which do not pertain to any other European post. The most important treaty between the United States and Russia has lapsed. A tacit modus operandi provides for the adjustment of all immediate matters of commercial importance, and for the arrangement of matters of state which may possibly affect either nation.

The last ambassador, ex-Governor Guild of Massachusetts, began the work which Editor Pindell will now have to complete.

Again That Point of View.

"Warden Moyer of the federal prison, Atlanta, said he would not yet make official reply to the charges by Julian Hawthorne and Dr. W. J. Morton, released from that prison Wednesday, that the institution was 'hell on earth.'"—The News, yesterday.

The warden is a wise warden. The prison may have been hell to these rather fortunate, rather "class" prisoners after some years of college, cafes and coin while seeming quite as a prison should be to a warden of a prison. Mr. Moyer will do well to think on the matter, from the viewpoint of the quickly-released Morton and Hawthorne, before committing himself and, possibly, his job, to the mercurial of a typewriting machine. His reports to Washington on condition, routine, supplies and methods of feeding and punishing speak for themselves, to be sure—but let him remember that these literary gent's will write for the newspapers and his statement better be most carefully accurate. Perhaps these two did not stay on the government's premises long enough to get really acquainted. We fancy hell would have lost a deal of its horror for Colonel D. Alighieri had he been required to do 18 holes, instead of 9.

MEDICAL JOURNAL ON OPEN AIR TREATMENT.

"It sometimes happens that when popular explanation of a phenomenon is disproved the impression is produced that the occurrence of the phenomenon itself is denied. Something like this has taken place with reference to the recent work on the physiological factors involved in room ventilation and the open-air treatment," says the Journal of the American Medical Association, discussing the treatment. It adds that there is reason to believe that the general public is still somewhat confused on this point. It was for a long time supposed that the bad effects of close and crowded rooms were due to chemical impurities in the air, to excess of carbon dioxide or to organic poison, or else to lack of oxygen. No one of these explanations is tenable in the light of recent experiment. On the contrary, all the ill effects observable in crowded rooms seem to depend on the stagnation, high temperature and moisture in the air; in a word, to those factors that disturb the normal heat regulation of the body. If the temperature and moisture are kept low, human exhalations may be allowed to accumulate without noticeable effect to a point far above that originally observed in the most "badly ventilated" room. On the other hand, if the experimenter breathes "pure" outdoor air through a tube, but allows his body to be confined in a small chamber where temperature and moisture are at a high point, he will soon have all the symptoms commonly attributed to "breathing foul air."

To substitute this explanation, which is wholly in accord with recent experimentation, for the once-current theory that expired air has a toxic property is not to question the value of fresh air or to decry the open-air treatment for tuberculosis. On the contrary, we are now in a much better position to understand in what way cool air and especially moving air produces marked invigoration and improvement of the general health. When the body loses heat at a suitable rate, heat production must also proceed at a certain rate in order to compensate for the loss. This means improved assimilation of food, and a larger consumption of food means better supply of material to build up the body. The action of cool, moving air is probably in itself beneficial. Moreover, it impels to exercise, and increased activity increases nutrition.

On the other hand, exposure to the stagnant atmosphere of confined places allows the skin to become surrounded with an envelope of warm air which prevents the body from losing heat at a proper rate. The nerves of the skin are not stimulated. The circulation is depressed. Reluctance to exercise and to any bodily exertion becomes marked. Expansion of the lungs and oxygenation of the blood are less frequent and thorough. Insufficient food is taken and much of the food eaten may decompose in the intestines and produce poisonous products.

Altogether there is still a sound physiologic foundation for the belief in the virtues of the outdoor life for the healthy as well as for the tuberculous person. In point of fact, says the Journal, nothing can discredit the rational open-air treatment, no matter what progress physiologists and hygienists may make in analyzing the mechanism on which this treatment rests.

Not That Kind of Man.

The idea of a body letting a body's eyes rove over the state looking for a candidate for governor, when the woods are already full of them. "The night has a thousand eyes," let it do the hunting—Claude Lorraine, Fort Worth Star-Telegram, attempting to belittle sage advice of our town.

Like most of Callan's prescriptions, a punk prescription. Certainly the woods are full of candidates. Certainly a new candidate can be uncovered every few nights. Callan may be willing to vote for a candidate who is not out of the woods or a candidate who operates in the dark. We prefer a candidate who is in the open and proceeds in strong sunlight. But Callan is of Fort Worth and Fort Worth's relation to the campaign may be obscuring his judgment.

IN AID OF COMMERCE.

Mobile Item has an informative epitome of measures and investigations in behalf of American commerce that will be urged "when the regular session of congress begins in December" and the house committee on interstate and foreign commerce, headed by Congressman William C. Adams of Georgia, and embracing among its members a number of exports on interstate commerce laws, springs into the limelight. This committee, if its present plans are carried out, will report three important bills at the next session, dividing with the judiciary committee which is expected to bring in measures amending the anti-trust laws.

The interstate and foreign commerce committee now has a number of problems on its hands but its program for the next session has the following top liners:

A bill delegating additional powers of the Interstate Commerce Commission, so that it may regulate the installation of safety devices on all railroads engaged in interstate commerce.

A bill to prohibit misrepresentation of articles handled in interstate commerce. In other words, the enactment of a law similar to the pure food law, except that the supplemental legislation will apply to everything which crosses a State line in transit from manufacturer or seller to the consumer. The enactment of such a law for instance would prohibit the misbranding of a suit of clothes, an automobile, a sack of oats, just as the pure food law prohibits the misbranding of medicines and food stuffs.

A bill to prevent the promiscuous slaughtering of calves, to which practice members of the committee attribute part responsibility for the present reported shortages of meat and the corresponding high prices.

Following the latest wreck on the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, where many lives might have been saved had there been in use steel cars and a modern signal system, the house committee began a series of hearings on various bills to require railroads to install safety devices for the better protection of their passengers. It is not the intention of the committee to rush this legislation through at the extra session, which will have done enough when it puts both a tariff and currency bill on the statute books, but the committee will be ready to recommend action in December.

That the committee will recommend a ban on wooden passenger cars is practically certain. It is also assured that railroads engaged in interstate commerce will be required to modernize their signal systems.

Members of the committee believe the situation may be met by delegating additional power to the Interstate Commerce Commission, which has been called upon to investigate several disastrous railroad wrecks within the past few months. The commission now has jurisdiction over railroad rates. It probably will be given jurisdiction also over the movement and operation of trains with authority to say at what speed trains shall run, how they shall be manned, what signal systems and anti-derailing devices shall be employed and when wooden cars must be supplanted by steel cars.

It will be impossible to bring about an immediate and complete change from wooden to steel equipment on many roads. The commission probably will be lucky if it has in use steel cars on all lines within a period of five years as the process of getting rid of the wooden equipment will be gradual, depending upon the rapidly with which steel equipment can be manufactured.

A second legislation problem ahead of the house committee is the amendment of the interstate commerce laws to preclude the shipment of articles fraudulently mislabeled. The pure food law has worked satisfactorily in the main, and there is now a movement afoot to have purity in other things. It is argued that if the adulteration and misbranding of drugs and foods are prohibited by law, congress also has the power to keep out of interstate commerce all other articles which are sold under fraudulent statements.

Members of the house committee have talked with President Wilson on this subject and it is understood that the president believes in legislation which will prevent the misbranding and misrepresentation of anything handled in interstate commerce.

The house committee may also strike a blow at the beef trust if it gives approval to a bill introduced by its chairman. He believes the beef shortage may be traced largely to the practice of killing calves.

The Adams bill, which the house committee is expected to report, provides that no female cow under seven years shall be slaughtered and bandied in interstate commerce for the purpose of making food and that no male cow under the age of two years shall be slaughtered and shipped. Such a law would bring to maturity millions of cattle now killed before they are grown. The Adams bill provides that cattle below the prescribed ages may be shipped interstate for feeding and grading purposes only, and persons slaughtering and selling calves are made criminally liable.

The house committee already is considering these three legislative problems and definite action is expected soon after the regular session is called to order. The regular session will be devoted mainly to appropriation bill, anti-trust bills and interstate commerce legislation along the lines indicated.

Roosevelt's letter to Sulzer bears date of October 2. That was subsequent to the testimony of Peck and Morganthau and prior to the testimony of Ryan. The dates are significant, in this connection. Ryan's testimony was neither challenged nor contradicted. Would Roosevelt have written the letter after testimony that Sulzer had endeavored to save his job by overtures to the two powers of political darkness?

The disturber of England and the disturber of Venezuela—and other settlements—were assigned to the same quarters in detention on Ellis Island. Why should all disturbers look alike to the immigration authorities?

Now there's that report concerning the Hon. Thomas Mitchell's passage through Washington and the Texas senatorship. Surely the State must make up its mind that the Campbells are coming—back.

"Colquitt Will Return," heralds our headline. Which is, at least, astute. The nervous citizen must read the dispatch if he would learn whether the return is to be political or merely geographical.

A dollar to a doughnut that the fact that the Pankhurst's detention budoir faced the Statue of Liberty will be exhibit A. in her and others' denunciation of the detention.

If there is an "election" in Mexico and Huerta is a candidate, how much more than 1000 to 1 should be the odds on the dictator?

The executive mansion at Albany is no longer "the people's house." The people should be grateful therefor.

We find ourselves still wishing that the U. of T. had saved that 75 score for an out-State team.

Count Zeppelin may indite an even sadder poem on the "We Were Seven" theme.

Texas Viewpoints.

Explanation O. K.

"The arrest of twenty or more duck hunters on the outskirts of Galveston Sunday does not necessarily indicate a disposition to violate or to defy the law," kindnesses Galveston News. "The chance is that their apprehension was brought about by an unconscious transgression of the statute. In fact, it has not been very long ago that the authorities at Austin themselves were in doubt as to the actual effect of the new federal law, and they had to await advice from Washington setting them right." Assuredly, not forgetting certainly and doubtless.

The unanimity and the numerosity—so to speak—of this "unconscious transgression" of a statute the relation and effect of which, for Texas, was emphasized in an Austin dispatch in the press of Saturday—the preceding day—are the best evidences of the unconsciousness of the transgression. We are loath to believe that fully twenty—or more—duck hunters of Galveston do not read the indispensable News. But we are not loath to believe that, in this matter of pallitation, the News is a good sport—a better sport, indeed, than any of them—but this is the affair of some twenty or more duck hunters "apprehended" on the outskirts of Galveston last Sunday.

Not Here, We Hope.

This begins the Dallas Times Herald's paragraph column: "Lift Texas out of the mud." Look you now what follows—as Bacon would say: "And Mrs. Pankhurst has sailed!" (That proper (!) is the Times Herald's). We remember it was the Pankhurst who once speech-screeched that the mill, suff's duty was to lift the folk of the right little, tight little island from the "slime" of debasement and the "slough" of ignorance by achieving liberty and placing liberty where liberty belonged. We had not heard the Pankhurst will come to Texas—our hope is that the Pankhurst will not come to Texas. But we are troubled by the proximity of the T-H's Pankhurst paragraph to its mud mention, natheless.

Right-to!

Waxahachie Light puts the whole truth in a very sound nutshell. "The eliminating process," it proclaims, "is all right provided the men who do the voting are permitted to take some part in the eliminating." The which means, is and will be the regular (underscore that word) Democratic (give another underscore) primary (a third underline) in July, 1914. The Light rightfully recognizes no half-dozen, dozen or two-score (in memoriam, those two-score) eliminators as arbiters of the whole people's interest in the small matter of a governor for Texas.

More Too-Soon Shots.

Rotan Advance items the advance, or rushing of the season: "Local gun men have been having great sport for several days shooting ducks on the lakes near town. The ducks are very plentiful and rather tame." Apart from contrasting "great sport" and "rather tame," we eschew comment. Hoping these few lines will not come to the unpleasant attention of officialdom.

We Go It One "Call" Worse.

"Rebels have taken to coining money from copper trolley wires at Parral. They of course carefully extracted the shock first." Corpus Christi Caller's clever commentator is never reluctant to twig us a bit when we struggle at, with or for a jest and we are not averse to calling him in kind. It is impossible for the rebels to be rid of the shock of handling money.

Not With Our Federal Guards.

Col. Henry Ellis wonders, in Denison Herald, "Should Mrs. Pankhurst be detained at Ellis Island, we wonder if the militant suffragettes of New York will attempt her rescue from the immigration authorities, vi et armis." The colonel should think shame! Does he class New York's finest or our government's officers at the island with the Bobbies of London or the riders sent against the hysterical crowds around that city's monuments? Firstly, the m. s. in New York are not that militant that they care to fall on the Pankhurst's neck; lastly, laws, statutes and ordinances of this land preclude not only any "vi et armis" but too much shrieking vi-tuperation et ar-guying.

PROTECT RATES ON BANANAS

Claim Discrimination in Favor of Fruit Shipped to Kansas Points.

Kansas City, Oct. 20.—Evidence to support the complaints of various traffic associations and commercial organizations that the freight tariffs on bananas shipped from New Orleans and Galveston to Topeka, Wichita and Hutchinson are unjustly discriminatory as compared with the rates to Nebraska, Iowa and South Dakota points, was submitted here today at a hearing before C. R. Marshall, special examiner of the Interstate Commerce commission.

The specific complaints under consideration were first filed by the Traffic Association of Topeka to the effect that the railroads in fixing the rates had discriminated against Topeka in favor of Lincoln and Beatrice, Neb., and another in which commercial organizations of Wichita and Hutchinson charged that the rates on bananas from the Gulf of Mexico to those points were both discriminatory and unreasonable.

Another complaint, pending before the commission, upon which evidence will be heard at the present hearing, was filed by jobbers of Lincoln and Beatrice who objected to the action of the railroads in raising the rates on bananas from the Gulf to those points to equalize the rates to Kansas and Nebraska points. This proposed increase has been suspended by an order of the commission.

Roscoe Hambrick, representing Wichita and Hutchinson dealers, testified that points in Iowa and Nebraska were granted a lower rate on bananas from the Gulf than was accorded Hutchinson and Wichita, despite the fact that the distance to the Nebraska and Iowa cities was greater.

Amends Commodity Tariff

Austin, Tex., Oct. 20.—The railroad commission today ordered that the commodity tariff applying on cotton and cotton linters in bales transported by railroads in Texas be amended by the substitution of the following:

"Railroad companies are required to concentrate cotton and cotton linters, without additional charge, at the option of the owner or shipper, once at any available point in Texas in line of shipment from origin of destination, and a second time at the port of destination and before delivery to the wharf and to carry the concentrated cotton or linters forward to ultimate destination at the request of the owner or shipper, making during the season of shipment and not afterwards."

This becomes effective on November 12, 1913.

SUFFERED AWFUL PAINS

For Sixteen Years. Restored To Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Moretown, Vermont.—"I was troubled with pains and irregularities for sixteen years, and was thin, weak and nervous. When I would lie down it would seem as if I was going right down out of sight into some dark hole, and the window curtains had faces that would peek out at me, and when I was out of doors it would seem as if something was going to happen. My blood was poor, my circulation was so bad I would be like a dead person at times. I had female weakness badly, my abdomen was sore and I had awful pains."

"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and used the Sensitive Wash and they certainly did wonders for me. My troubles disappeared and I am able to work hard every day."—Mrs. W. F. SAWYER, River View Farm, Moretown, Vermont.

Another Case. Gifford, Iowa.—"I was troubled with female weakness, also with displacement. I had very severe and steady headache, also pain in back and was very thin and tired all the time. I commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I am cured of these troubles. I cannot praise your medicine too highly."—Mrs. J. M. MAGNUS, Gifford, Iowa.

CONCESSIONS TO SPEED MEASURE

PRESIDENT WILLING TO ACCEPT
SUBSTANTIAL AMENDMENT TO CURRENCY BILL.

IS CHANCE FOR A RECESS

Wilson Writes Underwood Believes the Measure Will Be Reported to the Senate Soon.

Washington, Oct. 20.—With President Wilson willing to accept substantial amendment to the administration currency bill in the hope of securing speedy action on the measure in the senate committee, supporters of the administration today were optimistic over the chances for the passage of the measure before the end of the extra session. The president himself in a letter to Majority Leader Underwood announced his willingness to consider a proposal for a recess in the house because, he said, conferences with members of the senate committee lead him to believe the bill would be reported to the senate the first week in November and passed during the present session.

Republican members of the committee and Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska were inclined to look upon this plan as too optimistic, but other members of the committee said they hoped to be able to live up to the president's expectations.

A reduction in the number of reserve banks fixed by the administration bill at twelve and the removal of the secretary of agriculture and the controller of the currency from the federal reserve board, which would control the new currency system, were the amendments which the president let it be known he would not oppose. Witnesses before the senate committee have almost unanimously contended for these amendments and a majority of the committee is believed to favor them.

The proposed amendments would retain the federal reserve board as a strictly governmental institution, but would provide that it shall be composed of seven members, six to be appointed by the president and to devote their entire time to the work of the board, and the seventh to be the secretary of the treasury.

The committee has not yet taken up the question of reducing the number of reserve banks, but suggestions have been made putting the number all the way from three to ten. Senator Weeks (Republican) has a proposal that the number be reduced to a single federal bank to be controlled absolutely by the government.

Proposal for Recess.

The proposal for a recess of the house was taken up at the white house and at the capitol today and negotiations continued until late in the afternoon. President Wilson's letter to Mr. Underwood, made public at the white house, said the president was confident the currency bill would be reported in the senate in the first week of November and could be passed within three weeks thereafter.

Later Mr. Underwood sought Representative Mann, minority leader of the house, and urged him to consent to the passage of a joint resolution for a recess of the house until November 15.

Mr. Mann, who has insisted that congress should adjourn because of his belief that the currency bill could not be enacted at the extra session, postponed decision on the request until tomorrow. Then he went to the senate and discussed with republican and democratic members the president's assertion that the currency bill probably would be disposed of in November.

Wilson Talks with Republicans.

President Wilson's confidence that republican and democratic senators would reach an early agreement on the currency bill, which he expressed freely at the white house today, was based on talks with Senator Nelson and one or two other republicans. Members of the senate banking and currency committee expressed more confidence over an early outcome of the legislation than did Representative Mann, but some have been mischievous in the in-fighting of the twelfth, Breckinridge again slipped to the mat, but was up in a moment.

Representative Mann had not decided tonight whether he would agree tomorrow to the passage of a joint resolution permitting a recess of the house. As a quorum of the house is not in town, the democratic leaders cannot act without the consent of the republicans.

Victor Morawetz of New York, director of the National Bank of Commerce and a student of the currency problem, defended the administration bill before the senate committee today. He advocated a reduction in the number of federal reserve banks, however, and urged numerous minor amendments in the bill.

Practically every witness who has appeared before the committee up to date has suggested amendments designed to perfect the bill and when the committee closes its hearings on Saturday it will be confronted with hundreds of proposed changes which must be discussed and voted upon. Several of these will have the support of a majority of the committee.

GEORGE MAKES NO DEFENSE

Introduces No Testimony in Own Behalf in Fort Worth Alleged Conspiracy Case.

Fort Worth, Oct. 20.—No evidence was offered today by the defense in the trial of W. J. George for alleged conspiracy to swindle the city in the construction of the reservoir. When the state rested in District Judge Swayne's court the defense merely inquired if the affidavits used in cross-examination of A. C. Garrett, inspector, and the estimates were considered in evidence. With the announcement that they were considered and the agreement of both sides that all estimates up to No. 25 had been paid, the defense, too, rested.

Judge Swayne excused the jury until 3 o'clock to prepare his charge.

The sudden closing of the trial carries out the statement of the defense lawyers that they contended the state had failed to make out a case and see nothing to answer. The only defense evidence before the jury is that adduced in cross-examination of state witnesses.

Possible Witness Omitted.

Attorney W. P. McLean, Jr., of the defense said early today that no defense witnesses would be offered unless it might be Mrs. George, wife of the defendant. Even this was not done.

The defense maintains that the city was indebted to the Underground Construction company and that it could not conspire to swindle the city out of money due to it and also that if there were a swindle there has been no evidence to connect George with a swindle party.

A civil suit against the city, it was stated today, is ready for filing and will be introduced in the federal court Tuesday.

John H. Hawley, the closing witness, was used by the state to combat the theory that there could be no swindle if the city still owes the company money. Questions were directed to him to bring out that the contract as originally let should have been completed October 1, 1912, and that with allowances for unavoidable delay the reservoir should have been turned over to the city January 1, 1913.

Tobacco Man's Son

Is Charged With

Killing at Seattle

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 20.—Laurence Duke, son of Brodie Duke, the tobacco manufacturer, was formally charged with manslaughter today in an information filed by the prosecution.

An automobile driven by Duke struck and killed Henry N. Parr and Thomas G. Simmons last week. Duke will be arraigned Wednesday.

Killed by Live Wire.

Malden, Mass., Oct. 20.—Samuel Peters of Providence was killed and John L. Hurley, a former Bowdoin college football captain, will probably lose an arm as a result of contact with a live wire tonight. Peters, aboard the steamer Dec. T. Hawley, running between Providence and Savannah, was returning from a visit to friends when he grabbed a dangling wire. Hurley shouted a warning, but too late. Using a rubber shoe as a nonconductor Hurley tried to pull the wire from Peters' grasp, but he came into contact with the current and was rendered unconscious. His right arm was frightfully burned.

Stubbs Cancels Lecture Dates.

Lawrence, Kan., Oct. 20.—A threatened attack of appendicitis has caused W. R. Stubbs, former governor of Kansas, to cancel his speaking dates in Massachusetts. The governor had expected to campaign for the progressive party. At his home tonight it was said the governor's condition was not serious.

Kansas City Resumes Horse Show.

Kansas City, Oct. 20.—After having been suspended for six years, the Kansas City Horse show was resumed in convention hall with entries from all parts of the country. The show was abandoned six years ago because its directors declared the motor car was encroaching on the horse's popularity.

Mines Import Workmen.

Calumet, Mich., Oct. 20.—Many workmen have been imported into the copper strike district by the mining companies. Even though the strike is said to be the attitude of the mining companies not to re-employ any of the miners who have been active in the strike.

POWER PLANT PLAYS KILLJOY

It's "Up Stage" for Anna Held and Audience, While Old "Unavoidable" Appears in Favorite Role.

Another of those power house accidents explained by the light and power company officials as "unavoidable" threw buildings and grounds on the affected circuit into stygian darkness last night from 8:25 to 8:45 o'clock.

An audience that practically filled the Auditorium was just beginning to settle itself down to enjoyment of the Anna Held entertainment when the lights failed. The curtain had been up but a few minutes on the opening feature of the bill, the acrobatic exhibition of a troupe of Japanese. The performance of the Japs was halted and the performers rested twenty minutes before resuming their act.

Back to the Primitive Lights.

While the large audience waited impatiently the house manager sent a representative on the stage to announce that the fault did not lie with the electrical equipment of the theater, but with the power plant. An usher lit a candle and stuck it on the rail of a proscenium box and another candle was placed on the railing around the orchestra circle in the rear of the house. This illumination was augmented later by a kerosene lamp, which was carried to one of the stage boxes. Meanwhile the gallery grew restless and manifested its impatience in occasional clamorous outbursts. A party of "rah-rah" boys from Baylor added to the effort to relieve the monotony of the wait by giving the college yell derisively for the Texas Power and Light Co.

Bull's-Eyes on Bald Tops.

A group of men in one of the boxes amused themselves by flashing tiny rays from their pocket electric bull's-eyes over the occupants of orchestra seats and searching out the bald heads. Meanwhile the gallery grew restless and manifested its impatience in occasional clamorous outbursts. A party of "rah-rah" boys from Baylor added to the effort to relieve the monotony of the wait by giving the college yell derisively for the Texas Power and Light Co.

Twenty minutes elapsed, the lights returned and the show proceeded.

Griffith Beats Bresnahan.

Youngstown, O., Oct. 20.—Johnny Griffith of Akron, won a decision over Tommy Bresnahan of Omaha, Neb., in their 12-round bout here tonight. Most of the rounds were Griffith's by good margins. In the sixth Griffith sent Bresnahan to his knees with a right cross. Meanwhile the gallery grew restless and manifested its impatience in occasional clamorous outbursts. A party of "rah-rah" boys from Baylor added to the effort to relieve the monotony of the wait by giving the college yell derisively for the Texas Power and Light Co.

Servia Complies.

Belgrade, Oct. 20.—The Serbian government today notified the European powers that it had ordered its troops to withdraw immediately behind the Albanian frontier fixed by the London peace conference. This step complies with Austria's ultimatum.

Templemore Towed in Port.

Boston, Oct. 20.—The steamer Templemore, abandoned on fire off the Virginia capes on September 30, was towed into port today by the revenue cutter Androscoquin.

The steamer probably will be turned over to agents of the company in which she was insured.

Aged Parisians Want Duel.

Paris, Oct. 20.—A challenge to a duel was sent today by one French septuagenarian warrior, Gener. Rose, aged 72, to another still older, General Georges Florentin, aged 77, grand chancellor of the Legion of Honor.

The quarrel had its origin in local proceedings started by General Florentin to prevent members of the Society of National, founded by General Rose, from wearing a button among its insignia and thus infringing on the privilege of members of the Legion of Honor.

The seconds of the two aged officers met today to deliberate as to whether a combat would be necessary.

Prince Denies Opposing Father.

Berlin, Oct. 20.—The German crown prince has sent a letter to the imperial chancery declaring untrue the statement appearing in the press that he was in opposition to his father, the emperor, on the question of the accession of Prince Ernest August of Brunswick to the throne of Brunswick. He expressed his regret that a private letter from him on the subject had been made public and said the answer sent to him by the imperial chancery explaining the situation had done much to clear up the matter as far as he was concerned.

No Liquor for Indians.

Washington, Oct. 20.—The supreme court held today that the Pueblo Indians were under guardianship of the government and liquor could not be taken into their country without violation of the federal law. The decision marks a long fight to distinguish those Indians who have lived in towns since long before the first white settlement in the United States from the tribe which have been held to be wards of the government.

Cold Advances Coffee.

New York, Oct. 20.—There was a big advance in the coffee market today on rumors of cold weather in Brazil and unfavorable private crop advices. Early offerings were comparatively light after the heavy liquidation of late last week, but selling became heavier as prices reached a level 35 to 38 points above the closing figures of Saturday and caused reactions of some 12 to 15 points in the late trading. The spot market was firm and 1/4c higher in sympathy with the advance in futures.

Waters Pierce Case Passed.

Austin, Tex., Oct. 20.—The motion of Robert Eckhardt, receiver for the Waters Pierce Oil Company, was passed by agreement of all parties concerned in the Twenty-sixth District Court today. The case will be heard later in the week according to the present plans. The suit of Mr. Eckhardt asks for his discharge as receiver of the oil company and also for compensation when the court fixed at that time at $1000 per month.

Boston and New York Rates Same.

Washington, Oct. 20.—The Interstate Commerce commission today ordered that for two years the railroad rates on imports westbound from New York and Boston shall be the same. So ends the celebrated import rate case in which the two cities fought for advantages.

Boston and Maine Elects.

Boston, Oct. 20.—Morris McDonald was re-elected president and Howard Elliott was chosen chairman of the executive committee at the first meeting of the new board of directors of the Boston and Maine railroad today.

TO PROBE MITCHELL'S CHARGE

Leader Murphy of Tammany Hall Writes the Grand Jury to Investigate.

New York, Oct. 20.—Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, demanded today a grand jury investigation of charges alleged to have been made by John Purroy Mitchell, fusionist candidate for mayor, to the effect that the democratic organization leaders were co-opting voters for use on election day.

A letter from Mr. Murphy demanding such investigation was placed before the grand jury by Judge Malone of the court of general sessions.

"I request that you immediately submit to the grand jury, now sitting, this matter," says the letter, "so that prompt action may be taken to investigate the charges made by Mr. Mitchell and if they are not substantiated to prosecute the offenders to the full extent of the law."

"Charge of this sort recurs in each succeeding campaign, but heretofore they have been made anonymously and it seems to me desirable that they should be investigated, that the truth may be known. I enclose herewith a clipping quoting Mr. Mitchell, and I place myself entirely at the disposal of yourself and the grand jury to answer any charges Mr. Mitchell may make."

"I need not be said by the court, gentlemen, that the subject matter of this letter is important," said Judge Malone to the grand jury. "If the report referred to in this communication be accurate, then a specific charge has been made by a specific person against another of a serious offense against the law. The court directs you of take up at once this grave public question."

Anna Held.
In these rattle days, these times of noisy clothes, quick-action movies, of speedy, snorting motorcycles and sliding sixes, of September Mornings in short, in these good old halcyons of slapstick hurrahs, the sob sister is a very neglected human. So is her Little Brother of the Weeps. In other words, nearly everybody nowadays is too busy making money or keeping a toehold on the joy-wagon to join the sob squad or weep any weeps over the other fellow's trouble.

But occasionally some sudden thud in the road will bring even the shallowest of us face to face with some gripping tragedy; a certain touch of humanity will cause a tightening of the heartstrings; some pathetic incident cause a hesitation in the mad scramble for money and pleasure—bringing a moment in which we may listen to the voice of Brotherhood. We may not wish to listen or to heed. We may never heed. But the insistence of a true touch of human interest may force us to listen.

Such an incident is the little playlet, "The Sign of the Rose," written and enacted by George Behan—a rare little gem in the midst of the hurry and bustle of a corking good vaudeville bill. It is a darling little playlet, darling in that it seeks to impress upon the speed maniac a constant need for caution. The moral is summed up in the broken-hearted outburst of the bereaved Irishman: "Money! Money! Will money bring back the precious little life crushed out by your big machine?" Mr. Behan, both in writing the play and in his artistic enacting of the chief role, seeks to reach the heart of the hurrying times, sends out a powerful call to motorists. "Be careful!" His creation of the character is one of the classics of the modern stage—one of those rare touches of genius that are stamped with the gilt letter of perfection. During his present tour with Miss Held's variety, Mr. Behan is supported by an excellent company.

Miss Held in "Mile Baby."
Personally, this writer never threw any spasms of joy over Anna Held, even when she was going her best. Now that she has slowed up and about due for a drop back to the bush league—well, without being fussy about it, it might be well to say that she "runs for Sweeney, the end book and the fellow who likes her." She's pretty much the same old Miss Held, with the usual nice-looking girls and a near-comedian in Charles Judson.

Some centuries hence, when Prof. U. Tellum Kidd lectures on the history of music, he will refer to the rattle time period. Exhibit A will undoubtedly be "Alexander's Ragtime Band." Any act framed up around "Alexander" is a hit to go with—it's already over. Thus, one Hirschel Hendler, before unknown to Waco audiences, came mighty near "hogging" the bill with a nice little piano skit. All he needed to clear up last night was a little soft-pedal, slow-rhythm melody of rags.

"El Tango" Mucha Bueno.
Waco's first glimpse of the real tango came with the second number, put on by Francis and Florette. The act, however, is put on backwards—with a corking good opening and a punk finish, the final number being a phoney "Texas Tommy" without the bustle. The waltz and the tango were both artistic and marvellous of grace.

Bicycle acts as a rule are about down and out. But Ahern's act is of the foxy kind—none of the old trick stuff, but simply a line of comedy freaks that are clever to an extreme. This act was new to Waco and was a laugh knockout.

That venerable team, Ward and Curran, are an ever-recurring wonder. Like McIntyre and Heath, they have withstood all the vicissitudes of the game for well over a score of years, and as one old-time admirer said last night, "The old boy has many a laugh in him yet." Ward was in a rompy humor here and his performance was enjoyed as much by the company as by the audience.

Somebody had to open the bill—and somebody as well have been the Royal

CONTINUE WATSON HEARING TODAY

EDITOR IS CHARGED WITH SENDING OBSCENE MATTER THROUGH MAIL.

ADMITTS PUBLISHING ATTACKS

Defense Claims Law Unconstitutional That Would Restrict Freedom of Press.

Augusta, Ga., Oct. 20.—Hearing of the motion of the defense to quash the federal indictment against Thomas E. Watson, editor, publisher and politician, charged with sending obscene matter through the mails today, was continued until tomorrow by United States Judge Rufus E. Foster, in order to give the court opportunity to study the language of the publications alleged to be objectionable.

Attorneys for Watson, prior to the opening of court, predicted that the case never would reach the jury and had intimated that it might not be tried at all.

In this, however, they were mistaken, for at 11 o'clock this morning, less than half an hour after court opened, Judge Foster called the case and directed that a jury be drawn.

Upon request of S. G. McLendon, leading attorney for the defense, the drawing of the jury was postponed in order that two motions might be presented to the court. The first of these was a petition asking that the government be directed to file a bill of particulars, supplying the issues of "Watson's magazine" and the "Jeffersonian," in which the alleged obscene language appeared. By direction of the court this immediately was complied with.

The second motion of the defense—and the one upon which argument still was uncompleted when court adjourned—requested the quashing of the indictment against the Georgia editor upon the ground that congress has no right to abridge the freedom of the press.

It was admitted by the defense that Watson had written and published certain attacks upon the Roman Catholic Church, in which the passage referred to in the indictments returned against him November 14, 1912, appeared. Two of these passages were in English and one in Latin. Mr. McLendon, however, argued that the indictment should be quashed because the alleged unmailable matter was not set out therein nor the names of any persons addressed given because the publication containing the passages is not a book or pamphlet, because the language is not obscene within the meaning of the statute, because the supreme court has no authority to establish a standard of obscenity and because the statute itself is indefinite in that it omits the mention of newspapers and magazines.

The defense held that the federal statute is void because congress has not the power to make any act a crime in which the element of unlawfulness is not involved or to abridge the freedom of the press. Mr. McLendon recited the chronology of similar cases in the courts of the United States for many years.

He was in the midst of this argument when Judge Foster interrupted him by saying it seemed useless to further pursue the historical aspects of the matter.

The real purpose of the case, the court declared, is to determine whether the language referred to in the indictment is in violation of the law and in order to familiarize himself with the exact nature of the passages in question, Judge Foster adjourned court until tomorrow.

Dr. De Luxe.

Of Dr. De Luxe, which is at the Auditorium tonight, the Fort Worth Record says:

"With a bevy of winsome women, a charming leading lady, Miss Ann Tasker, and a cast of good actors, Oscar Figman made his initial appearance in Fort Worth in 'Miss Behave' Friday night at the Byers opera house. He is one of the best comedians ever seen in Fort Worth. 'Miss Behave' formerly called 'Dr. De Luxe,' is perhaps the funniest musical comedy written by Otto Hauerbach—and Hauerbach wrote 'Madame Sherry' and 'Three Twins'."

"Miss Behave" will be presented at the Byers Saturday matinee and night. This is the first production Manager Greenwall has presented for a couple of days' stand this season. Reasoning from audiences which have attended other offerings he has made, the Byers manager has made a venture. If the box office supports Saturday afternoon and evening is not augmented by many musical enthusiasts and comedy lovers, Manager Greenwall's venture will prove a failure.

"Brilliant and sparkling wit scintillated from every advance in the dialogue. Wit of the true sort—that which is dry dialogue until it meets response in a mind keyed to appreciate it. And Oscar Figman masterfully complemented the obscure and brought it home in the world's vernacular—expression."

"Tuneful songs, subtly interpreted by graceful dancers, crowned in dainty Broadway togs, were interspersed with a symmetry impossible to produce without terpsichorean and musical offerings. Miss Ann Tasker is a star. She acts well. She sings better. She dances best. But the Miss Behave—the libretto and musical comedy alike—is a firmament in which many stars shine. To map them would be to reproduce the programmed personnel of the entire cast, the litany of Scaram kiddies and the circus."

"Had Mat Hanley displayed an empty sleeve and prated over a war record beginning with Bull Run he would have more adequately portrayed the character of a Southern 'colonel.' This is all lacking in his interpretation of his part. Jeff Platt was good, cast as Toodlums. She is a juvenile actress of fine talent."

"It is a brilliant offering and is deserving of a most liberal patronage."

STORES TO CLOSE EARLY ON NOV. 1

COTTON PALACE DIRECTORS ARRANGE FOR OPENING OF FESTAL SEASON.

SECRETARY HOUSTON INVITED

Head of Department of Agriculture May Be Guest of Directors—Austin Y. M. B. L. is Coming.

Secretary of Agriculture D. F. Houston will be asked to take in the Cotton Palace on his visit to Texas next month during the exposition period. Houston & Texas Central will substitute their regular trains in lieu of the motor car service during the Cotton Palace during the sixteen days, November 1st to 16th, to accommodate the large crowds to attend from points on that road.

Everybody selling twenty-five season tickets to the Cotton Palace will get one free ticket.

The Young Men's Business League of Austin to come to the Cotton Palace in a special train on Young Men's Business League Day.

Gladi Hand and Reception Committee to meet trains during the Cotton Palace: W. V. Crawford, J. Hagedorn, M. B. Davis, Frank Trau, E. F. Drake, J. M. Clement, C. C. Shumway and C. C. Beckley.

The foregoing were the principal matters brought up before the Cotton Palace directors last night. The directors were in session one hour and adjourned at 9 p. m. out of respect for C. J. Glover, Sr.

Store Closing Committee.
When President Hoffman called the meeting to order there were present: W. H. Hoffman, L. Migel, E. F. Drake, W. W. Pryor, T. P. Duncan, W. T. Abernathy, W. T. Herriek, C. B. Cox, H. S. Forman, L. Friedlander, Secretary Bob N. Martell, T. J. Mayhew, Manager M. B. Davis and Mrs. L. Friedlander, the latter being named an honorary director for the evening.

President Hoffman named the following store closing committee for the opening day, Saturday, November 1st, the stores to close at 8 p. m.: W. J. Mitchell, S. Hirschberg, Alex Sanger, J. A. Loughbridge and John F. Wright. A small convention tent will be erected on the grounds at the Cotton Palace this fall, to seat about 200 people, for use by the smaller gatherings than would have occasion to use the coliseum.

W. T. Abernathy was named as a committee to secure seats or benches for this tent.

Wells-Fargo Offers Strong Box.
President Hoffman announced that the Wells-Fargo Express Company had donated a safe or strong box to the Cotton Palace to be used in storing for the enormous gate receipts that will result this year by reason of the increased attendance due to the uniqueness and great attractiveness of the Greater 1913 Cotton Palace.

The announcement by L. Friedlander that the Houston & Texas Central would substitute a regular passenger train instead of the motor car on the Greater 1913 Cotton Palace schedule was received with great enthusiasm.

W. T. Abernathy, chairman of the livestock division, reported unusual interest in this department, stating that this fall would see the grandest array of fine horses, cattle, swine, etc., ever seen in this entire section.

Decorations Attractive.
C. H. Cox, chairman of the committee on decorations, reported magnificent work having been done on the buildings and grounds, with the result that all he had to do was to request a marvelous beautiful exposition in every respect more unique than anything ever before put on. The front entrance will be brilliantly lighted, in keeping with the brilliancy of the entire night scene, and the elevated fountain would again prove a center of attraction on the grounds.

W. W. Pryor, chairman of the committee on tickets, stated that the sales before progress had been made in selling twenty-five season tickets would receive a season ticket free of charge, and reserved seats could be obtained at the ticket-selling headquarters, in the public department, at the Adams Hotel. With the inauguration of a morning band concert by Ellery's famous band, also delightful concerts in the afternoon and evenings, with complete change of program, and a full season ticket, a purchaser may come and go at will as often as is desired, there is strong inducement for one to buy season tickets.

Has Wide Publicity.

President Hoffman mentioned the fact that the complete program of the entire sixteen days had been published by various State papers on Sunday, also that the press of Texas had been unusually good this year in assisting the exposition, and the directors expressed appreciation therefor as a great service was being rendered in putting the Cotton Palace before prospective settlers in the north and west who were anxious to get a panoramic exposition of the possibilities of the Lone Star State in all lines and to see the advances the people were making, as fully portrayed in the various Cotton Palace departments.

The hour of nine having arrived the directors adjourned promptly in respect to the memory of C. J. Glover, ever liberal in all things tending to promote the welfare of the city and the State.

College Station, Oct. 21.—The most complete exhibit ever prepared by the Texas A. & M. College will be installed at the Waco Cotton Palace before that attraction opens November 1. The first shipment of stuff for this exhibit left College Station this morning and will be installed immediately. The textile engineering department which is not represented at Dallas, will have an extensive display at Waco. Government samples used by cotton chasers students at the college will be open for inspection and examination by the Cotton Palace visitors.

Pictures showing the various stages through which the raw article passes before it becomes the finished cotton product also will be a feature of this exhibit.

Wireless telegraphy will feature the exhibit of the electrical engineering department. An instrument will be set up and operated at the Cotton Palace by students of this department.

WACOANS FLEE FROM MEXICO POLICE ARE PUZZLED

J. T. Davis and His Family Quit Torreon Only When Conditions Become Unendurable.

J. T. Davis, with his wife and two children, arrived in the city this morning on an early train, having been among the refugees from Torreon, Mexico, who were brought to Galveston on the steamship Texas.

Mrs. Davis is a niece of William Meade of this city, having formerly been Miss Josephine Meade. With Mr. Davis, she has lived in Torreon six years, where the latter was engaged in business as a mining engineer.

Waited in Vain for Peace.
Although the mine with which he was associated had shut down six months ago on account of the unsettled conditions, Mr. Davis remained with his family in Torreon, hoping that peace would soon be brought about. When affairs became so bad, however, that the Sisters of Charity began to leave the city, as they have been doing for the past few days, he took his wife and children to the coast, where he embarked for Galveston.

Temple, Tex., Oct. 20.—Cotton receipts this far this year are over twenty per cent short as compared with the same period of last year. Up to October 18th the season's receipts aggregated 744 bales, while up to the same time last year the receipts were 958 bales, making a shortage for the present season of 214 bales.

BUT CLING TO THE BELIEF THAT FOUL MURDER WAS DONE.

Mystery Shrouds Unidentified Body of Boy Taken From the Waters of the Brazos Sunday.

The police cling to the theory that the boy whose body was taken from the Brazos river, near Waco Sunday, was murdered.

Officers who are busy in attendance upon the courts were unable to pursue their investigation yesterday. Many versions as to the cause of death of the lad were advanced yesterday. Some officers believe that he had been robbed of his clothes and any other effects, murdered and the body cast into the flowing river, which abrasions were easily made because of the fact that the flesh had begun to decompose. All agree, however, that the body had been adrift on the river for some days. As to how far it must have floated and from whence it came, they are at a loss.

Mystery Enshrouds Identity.
Justice of the Peace Harvey M. Richey, who was among the first officials to reach the scene of discovery, who yesterday he had no theory as to the cause of death. Other officers were unable to give information.

That the boy might have been killed in Waco along the river banks and the body dumped into the river is the belief of some officers. Others think that could have easily been done, and the body would have floated five miles without detection, others say it could have floated much farther than that.

As yet no one has called at the sheriff's office nor at the undertaking parlors where the body was cared for to inquire with reference to anyone following a description of the dead boy.

EIGHT FOREIGNERS ON ROLL

Auspicious Opening of the Free Night School in High School Building. Three Nights Each Week.

Forty-three persons took advantage of the free night school which opened at the high school building last night, and from indications the attendance will be far greater than that number.

In fact Prof. E. T. Genheimer, principal of the high school and who is in charge of the night work, stated that he expected the next session of the school which is Wednesday night, will be attended by at least twice that number. Those who took advantage of the free instruction on the opening night ranged in age from twelve to thirty-three years. The greatest number, however, were within the teens, ranging from twelve to sixteen. Some were above twenty and one student was thirty-three years of age.

Messenger Boys' Opportunity. All grades of school were represented, from the third grade to the high school grades. Eight foreigners were among the attendants. Of this number one was a college graduate of his native land, and another a high school graduate. Many of these had not been in the United States except a few months.

In regard to the work Prof. Genheimer said that he had great expectations. The instructors have delegated the messenger boys of the city to become messengers in fact and each bring with him at the next session some companions.

Three Nights Each Week. The school will be conducted on Monday, Wednesday and Thursday nights, from 7:30 to 9:00 o'clock. Last night the session was held only a short time, as classification and arrangements were the principal order of procedure.

For the present no class for advanced students will be formed, that is not until as many as six students apply for instruction in these subjects.

Headed by Prof. Genheimer, the instructors in the free school are R. W. Glasgow, principal of the Sanger Avenue school, W. R. Marks, principal of the South Third street school, B. W. Moore, a mathematician in the high school. The instruction is free to all who apply and is conducted in order to afford opportunity to those who are prevented from attending day school.

FIGHT STATE FRANCHISE TAX

Failure of Legality of Act Would Cost Texas $200,000 Per Year.

Austin, Tex., Oct. 20.—A motion for permission to file mandamus proceedings together with a mandamus petition were filed with the state supreme court today. Attack on the constitutionality of the state franchise is made with reference only to the collection of the franchise tax and permit fees required of foreign corporations.

Alleging that it is a tax on interstate commerce, the Atlas Powder company has filed proceedings against the secretary of state. The motion has not been granted yet nor set down for argument. The failure of the legality of the state statute would cost the state approximately $200,000 per year in taxes.

A somewhat similar suit involving the legality of the franchise tax, styled Rand, McNally & Co. vs. John L. Wortham, secretary of state, is on the docket of the local district court. Both cases are likely to go to the United States Supreme court in case state courts sustain the state statutes.

INTERNAL STRIFE SERVES TO CONSOLIDATE CHINESE REPUBLIC

Problems Settled By Compromise Rather Than By Force—First Difficulty Was Finance—The Condition Is Now Good

Peking, Oct. 20.—Present struggles in China are believed to be resulting in the consolidation rather than the disintegration of China. The overthrow of the Manchu dynasty by arms left many unsolved problems, among them the following: Should the new government be a monarchy or a republic? Should the ruler be Yuan Shi Kai or Sun Yat Sen? Should the central government be strengthened or should China remain a loose aggregate of semi-independent provinces?

These problems were settled not by force but by compromise in which the views of the south were accepted on the first and most important problem as to the form of government, and those of the north on the second and third problems; while the fourth problem, the relative strength of the central government and the provinces, was left unsolved. These conclusions were reached by the consent of Yuan Shi Kai to the adoption of the republic and by the decision of Li Yuan Heng, who had charge of the revolutionary forces, and of all the most thoughtful leaders of China in favor of Yuan Shi Kai for the presidency.

First Problem, Finance. The first problem which confronted Yuan Shi Kai as provisional president and the new government was the problem of finance. Fortunately, the finances of China in general are in good condition, so far as indebtedness and the annual expenditures of the nation are concerned. The total indebtedness of China for the central government, the provinces and the cities plus the recent loan, is $1,975,000,000, gold, of which $277,000,000 are on railway and telegraph lines and other industries which are earning more than interest, leaving some $1,698,000,000 to be met by taxation. Considering that Japan's national indebtedness is $1,266,301,422 and that China's population and natural resources are some six or seven times as large as Japan's, China's indebtedness, speaking in comparative terms, is large. Putting the total indebtedness in another form, China's total indebtedness is about two dollars per capita, whereas Japan's, including the Koreans in her population, is some twenty dollars per capita.

In regard to current expenses Yuan Shi Kai is making a favorable showing. The gross expenses of the government for the first six months of 1913, as recently submitted to parliament, were $44,417,726 gold. This is at the rate of $18,822,222 per annum. The deficit for six months of over $58,000,000. This grave problem brings up the still graver unsolved problem of the relation of the central government to the various provinces. In the history of China down to the present time the central government has received its income through the provincial officials, with the exception of the salt and the customs tax. The Chinese know that government rests ultimately upon the power of the purse. Hence, in order for the central government to feel assured of its income the emperor had appointed every provincial official down to the head of the county. Whatever else an official might or might not do, the payment of the taxes to the central government was the first condition upon which he could hope to retain his office. But inasmuch as the imperial government frequently had been despotic, the public sentiment of China has been for centuries in favor of local government as over against the imperial government.

Elect Governors. Hence, in the revolution, on the flight of the Manchu governors, the provincial assemblies followed the natural inclinations of their leaders and the example of the United States, and elected governors for their provinces. Thus Yuan Shi Kai found himself face to face with governors who did not owe their position to him. The problem became more acute because seven of the twenty-two provinces had not remitted a single dollar of taxes since the revolution broke out in November, 1911, and the remaining fifteen had remitted far less taxes than usual. Therefore, despite the small expenditures of China as compared with other nations, Yuan Shi Kai had less than one-third of the income needed, and foreign governments were pressing him hard for overdue interest on the public debt.

Had Yuan Shi Kai displayed the qualities of a dictator, he would have removed the officials who failed to pay taxes and would have appointed governors loyal to the central government. Upon the contrary, he has displayed great tact. Probably a policy of masterly inactivity was the wisest for him under the circumstances. All who are familiar with western governments felt that the provincial assemblies were right in insisting upon the authority of the provinces to elect their own governors, and had Yuan Shi Kai presumed to remove the officials chosen by the provinces and to punish the provinces for not remitting the taxes, unquestionably he would have been charged with despotism, and he would have had a formidable rebellion on his hands. But instead of confronting China, the disaffected interpreted Yuan Shi Kai's failure to punish them as weakness, and his borrowing money without a vote from the second parliament as despotic, and they forced on the rebellion, which has just been suppressed.

Sun Yat Sen in Japan.

Sun Yat Sen spent the early months of 1912 in Japan. It seems improbable that he received any encouragement from the Japanese government, certainly the government made no formal alliance with him. But it is certain that he received encouragement from individual Japanese, some of whom were later captured in the forts of the Chinese rebels. Sun Yat Sen returned to China in April and began an open propaganda of rebellion. He, however, delayed any public statement of his position until July 21, and Yuan Shi Kai, despite his knowledge of Sun Yat Sen's encouragement of rebellion, did not remove Dr. Sun from his position as commissioner of railways until three days after Dr. Sun issued his proclamation, in which he called upon "the people of six or seven provinces" to have determined to sacrifice their lives in order to oppose his tyranny as a public servant.

On successive days between April 21 and May 5 it is known that at least four of five Americans and one Chinese called upon Sun Yat Sen, and each assured him that there was not sufficient cause for a second revolution; that upon the contrary, the overwhelming sentiment of the business men of the United States, and the people of public opinion in these provinces, was against a second revolution. Moreover, his own party, the Kuomintang, in Peking, was greatly troubled over the reports reaching them of his intention to start a rebellion.

These members of parliament were keeping in close touch with their constituents at home and they knew the public sentiment of China. On May 3 they sent a leading representative of the party from Peking to Shanghai to inform Sun Yat Sen that not a single province favored rebellion, and that they would not follow him into political suicide. The outcome of the war shows that the leaders of the Kuomintang were right and that Sun Yat Sen's statement that the people of six or seven provinces were willing to overthrow Yuan Shi Kai rested upon either blindness to the facts or malicious misrepresentation.

I tried a sample of Resinol Soap and Ointment and noticed instant relief. I bought Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment, and began the treatment. dangers to China. First, it has compelled a considerable increase in expenditures at a critical time and it has disorganized the industries of central China and in some measure of all China so that temporarily the nation is in as bad a financial condition as at the close of the Revolution. Second, it left the nation helpless against further aggression by Russia and Japan, and Russia has taken advantage of the crisis and is trying to compel Yuan Shi Kai to sign a release of all Chinese claims to Mongolia. Third, the outcome has made clear to the Chinese soldiers that in times of uncertainty like the present, government rests upon physical force, and upon the army as the embodiment of that force. Fourth, a large majority of the young men of China who are influential today and who may be the leaders of China tomorrow distrust Yuan Shi Kai. They say that he betrayed Kuang Hsu for the Empress Dowager in 1911, and that he will now betray the Republic. Whatever may be the cause of their distrust, their lack of confidence in Yuan Shi Kai is the most serious problem which confronts China. If their judgment remains unchanged and their views gradually permeate the nation, there may be future rebellions and republican government under Yuan Shi Kai may become impossible. In this case, Yuan Shi Kai may feel compelled to retire, and his retirement at the present time would be a misfortune to China.

Have Grounds for Hope.

Upon the other hand, there are four grounds for hope. First, China was face to face with a crisis which demanded some solution in the near future. The central government, by the failure of the provinces to send in the customary taxes, temporarily was bankrupt, and some immediate provision was demanded to enable her to pay her soldiers and thus save them from looting to maintain the departments and thus prevent the government coming to a standstill, and also to pay the interest on the public debt and save China from foreign control. Yuan Shi Kai, by borrowing money which the resources of China are ample to repay, has made the same provision for the crisis which the United States and other civilized governments have been obliged to make in similar conditions. Second, the struggle has eliminated certain men unfit for leadership. Third, the crisis has brought to the front a group of new leaders who give good promise of constructive statesmanship. The new Premier, Hsiung Hsi Ling, gives promise through his character and ability and experience of rendering real service to China. Also Liang Chi Chiao, who was the constructive thinker of the Revolution in 1911 and whom Yuan Shi Kai has offered a position in the Cabinet, is moulding the thought of China along the lines of real progress. There are other leaders who are growing in influence. Above all, Yuan Shi Kai and Li Yuan Heng were the two men who emerged from the Revolution as men of their word, and men who were able to make good their words by deed; and the Chinese showed their instinctive ability to find the strongest reason for the crisis in making one of them the President and the other the vice-president of the nation. Fourth, the strengthening of the central government by the collapse of the efforts upon the part of three or four provinces to establish their independence may have important consequences for the future.

Newspaper Man In Criticism of Race Discriminations

Baltimore, Oct. 20.—Segregation and other alleged discriminations against the negro were denounced by Oswald Garrison Villard, president of the New York Evening Post, and other speakers, at a mass meeting here today under the auspices of the local branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Mr. Villard characterized the race segregation ordinance recently enacted in this city as "contrary to the constitution of the United States." The speaker also opposed the proposed plan of segregation in certain departments of the federal government at Washington.

CHARTER MEETING POSTPONED.

Absence of Four Members From the City Cause.

Because of the absence from the city of four members of the general charter committee, who had evidenced an interest in the work of that committee, the regular meeting to have been held last night was postponed.

The meeting will be held tonight at 8 o'clock. Chairman A. R. McCollum announced the postponement yesterday afternoon, after he had been informed by four members that they would not be in attendance. He expressed the opinion that all who are interested should be given an opportunity to attend each meeting, therefore, the meeting was postponed.

When the committee meets tonight each member will have a copy of the proposed amendments as introduced at the last meeting. These have been codified. This is expected to facilitate the work of that body.

Report of Insurance Men Is Yet to Be Announced.

Report of the committee of insurance men as to the apportionment of insurance among fourteen agencies in the city, which insurance covered all buildings and equipment in the school system, which was to have been made to the school board yesterday was deferred because the board did not meet. Just when the meeting will take place has not been determined.

The committee is ready to make its report, according to R. Lyles Jr., a member of that body. This report will include a statement showing to what agencies in the city insurance on the school buildings was given.

There's a lot of pleasure in selling Selz Shoes. Most people are easy to fit with them and they are generally as well pleased over their purchase as we were in selling. Another good point about Selz Shoes is, they generally make good lasting friends. So much more pleasant to see a customer come back and order the same kind of shoes they had last season. Selz customers do this. That's why they are making the famous Selz Waukenphast that has been a Selz standard for many years. People just can't get tired of them. They're not that kind. Texas Enter Tentative Pleas of Not Guilty at New Orleans.

They were given ten days to demur or take other action and were released on $2,000 bail each.

The landlord looked aggrieved. "Well, that's winter, ain't it?" he exclaimed. "If eight below ain't winter I'd like to know what is!"

DALLAS TRIP ASSURED

SUFFICIENT TICKETS SOLD TO DEFRAY EXPENSES YESTERDAY AFTERNOON.

Hustlers Not Content With Size of Crowd in Sight, However, and Will Try Again Today.

The Y. M. B. L. hustlers won their fight yesterday afternoon. Enough tickets were sold to assure the trip to Dallas Thursday.

A large majority of the members of the Dallas excursion committee worked loyally for over an hour. Many tickets were sold, but the response was not quite so great as had been expected. It was stated last night by members of the various committees that many business men had not made up their minds to go to the fair; many have not had time to make the necessary arrangements to go and therefore more time is needed to sell the tickets.

On the job again today.

Several of the committee will again work today to endeavor to sell all prospective buyers that have not been seen, and again those who have expressed themselves as doubtful.

Ben F. Dancer, one of the many hard workers, said that he could not understand why it is that everyone who contemplates going to the Dallas fair does not go on this trip. The fact that everyone will know everyone else, he thought, should be an inducement and make it a sort of a proposition which will bind closer ties in Waco. And then the principle object of the trip, boosting the Cotton Palace, should appeal to citizens of Waco in general.

The good that can be done by a large representative crowd going will be hard to estimate.

An Ideal Trip.

The trip will be an ideal one. A schedule is being arranged by W. E. Edgar, chairman of the Young Men's Business League transportation committee, that is attractive. The train will leave at a convenient hour in the morning, arriving in Dallas in plenty of time to see all the sights of the Dallas Fair. The return voyage will be made at the same night, reaching Waco about midnight. The rate, which has been announced, is $4.50.

There being only a small difference in the regular fair rate to Dallas, Alex Sanger argues, should not stand in the way of any citizen who is patriotic and desirous to do Waco and the Cotton Palace good.

Over 100 Tickets Sold.

Over one hundred tickets for the trip and it is desired by the committee to have at least two hundred go so as to make a more favorable showing at the Dallas Fair.

C. H. Cox, J. B. Gilmer, Harry Rohrer and C. C. Beckley assure all a good time and that they will be long remembered as a pleasurable event.

DOORS OPEN TO PANKHURST

ferry boat at the Battery was the same person that for several years had caused the British government so much trouble by reason of her militant tactics in behalf of woman suffrage or her incitations to militancy in England. Also her tranquil countenance and brightness of eye gave no indication that she had gone through the ordeals of six prolonged hunger strikes to obtain her release from prison sentences imposed for ill-timed acts of violence in England in her endeavors to gain votes for women.

Shortly after she landed, Mrs. Pankhurst was taken in an automobile to the residence of Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, where she had lunch, and tonight she was dining at the home of the Woman's Political Union. She was highly elated over her release.

"The American people did it—it is their will," she said. "What will the English say? Then she paid her respects to the members of the British home secretary, characterizing him as the "chief torturer for England." She said it was not her purpose to preach militancy in this country, but that she would confine herself to an exposition of the treatment accorded the suffragettes in England.

Mrs. Pankhurst was the recipient of a demonstration unique in the annals of Ellis Island as she was leaving the immigration station. Men and women employees sought points of vantage from which to see the militant leader and the board of special inquiry adjourned cases that its members and the immigrants might see her as she walked toward the ferry boat and the freedom of the country.

More than 200 members of the Women's Political Union attended the dinner at the Aldine club, which was given as an official welcome of Mrs. Pankhurst.

The militant leader in an address said the happenings of the last two days had done much to restore her confidence in the democracy of the American people. "Think of the opinion in England, when the news of my release reaches there," she added. "They committed me there for crimes against the law, which were committed by the highest motives and nothing would have pleased them more than to have seen me deported."

To those who criticized her motives and her right to come to America and preach her doctrine to the people of this country, Mrs. Pankhurst said: "I exercise the same right as the representative of any suppressed people to go to the people of other nations and plead for assistance. Your own Benjamin Franklin, in the time of stress and difficulty, made a pilgrimage to France seeking relief and assistance. This is a woman's movement and we plead the undeniable right to go to the women all over the civilized world and lay our case before them as often and as comprehensively as we can do so."

A reference to lack of militancy was made at the conclusion of her address. "To those who have been in doubt," she said, "I wish to say that I don't question the wisdom of the American people in conducting their campaign along the lines that they have, but I must say this, that I have never been happier than since I reached the decision that my daughters and I must fight our battles along the lines of militancy."

SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK

When Mixed With Sulphur It Brings Back Its Lustre and Abundance.

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks dry, limp and scraggly, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the tonic at home or get a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation because it darkens the hair beautifully and removes dandruff, stops scalp itching and falling hair; besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.

DEMOCRATS WIN IN ILLINOIS.

In Fiercely Contested Election Craig Is Elected Judge.

Peoria, Ill., Oct. 20.—In the most fiercely contested judicial election in the history of Illinois, Charles Craig, democrat, of Galesburg, was elected to the Supreme bench to succeed Judge John P. Hand by a majority of 1,646 over Judge Leslie D. Puterbaugh, republican, of Peoria.

Arthur Shay, the progressive candidate from Streator, ran nearly five thousand votes behind the republican.

Political experts attribute the democratic success to the entrance of progressive and woman suffrage elements into the campaign. Up to ten days before the campaign closed there was little interest taken in the struggle.

The election showed democratic gains.

Stovall Goes to Federal League.

Kansas City, Oct. 20.—George Stovall, formerly manager of the St. Louis American League baseball club, came to terms tonight with the directors of the Kansas City club of the Federal League to manage the local team next season.

Stovall announced he would not sign his contract, however, until November 1 when Robert Hedges, president of the St. Louis club, has promised to give an answer to Stovall's request for an unconditional release.

It is understood Stovall's contract, which is for three years, calls for a salary of $7,500 a year and a substantial bonus for signing. Before playing with St. Louis, Stovall was with the Cleveland Americans.

FACTURE EXCEPT ON ONE
PROCESS.Explanation of the Manner in Which the Spheroid is Formed for Great College Game.

That phrase so much used in the football season, "chasing the pigskin," involves a popular error. The football is not made of pigskin, but of the hide of the calf or cow, and for the cheaper variety the skin of the sheep. Footballs of the ordinary grade are made in this country, but some of the finest, sold to those who are not particular about price, are imported from England, where the industry was an old one before it was started in America.

The making of a football is almost entirely a male industry. The only share that women have in the work is seen when one first enters a football factory. At long tables girls sit pasting linings on sections of the footballs cut in another part of the factory. It is work that a girl is particularly fitted for, as the linings must be carefully fastened to the rough leather and smoothed until there is not a sign of a bubble or rough place on the surface of the lining.

First Step Is Selection.
The first step in the making of a football is to select the leather. Only the best of picked skins are used and each skin is carefully gone over for defects before being cut into the necessary sections. This is done by machinery, and the sections are then sent to the room in which the girls are at work for the lining to be pasted on.

Then the lined sections are sent to the sewing room and the linings are stitched together, bringing the outer covering of the football into position for the final stitching. This is done by a machine that turns the footballs out stitched in the seams but wrong side out. They must then be turned right side out, a job that is left to men who do nothing else all day long but reverse the leather covers by hand, a work that requires great strength and endurance and gives the workers a prodigious amount of pulling power in the muscles of the arms and hands.

When the cover is pulled right side out the outer part of the football is finished ready for the inflation. The bladder is inserted and blown up and the ball is then stamped on a hot press and worked up until the surface is perfectly smooth and free from rough spots. The ball is then deflated and placed aside for shipment.

New Idea Is Recent.
Balls intended for the soccer game or for basketball are also made in the way described. A new idea recently applied to the making of the football is to provide a ball suited to the rough treatment inseparable from play on the stone flagged or asphalted pavement of the school playground. It was found that the finely finished football intended for use on a grass covered field could not stand the hard usage received during practice in the school yard, and a football was therefore devised especially for this rough work, with the seams stitched on the outside instead of the inside. Sewing the seams from the outside provided a ridge that protects the ball when kicked and bounced in a paved court and makes the cost of the footballs used in a season somewhat less than when the finely finished oval of the gridiron grounds is used.

Bladders of Rubber.
The origin of the term "kicking the pigskin" was explained by one of the authorities in this way: "Years ago when the game was in its early stages in England, the inflation was done by means of the bladder of a pig. In those old days the skin of the pig was actually subjected to the indignity of being propelled high in the air by the blast of a football player, but as the bladder no longer is used the term has ceased to apply."

The bladders are now made of the best Para rubber. The regulation football weighs from thirteen and a quarter to fourteen ounces. The soccer ball weighs from thirteen to fifteen ounces. One cannot definitely predict the life of a football, but the makers say the hardest kicking should fail to retire the ball in less than two years. It may not be generally known that football has a patron saint. In 1526 a boy named Hugh had the misfortune to kick a football through a window in the house of a neighbor, who became so incensed at the damage done that he stabbed the boy to death. The populace avenged the boy's death by killing his slayer and then exalted the name of the unfortunate boy by calling him "Saint Hugh."

the Huskies From Tennessee. Tigers Have Edge in Number of Games Won.

Austin, Oct. 20.—When the University of Texas meets Sewanee on October 25 at the fair grounds at Dallas it will be the sixth football contest between these two institutions during the last fourteen years. Sewanee and Texas have met in '98, '99, '02, '05 and '11. The Tigers have won three games to the Longhorns' two. Each team has scored thirty-three points against the other and it will remain for the Dallas game to decide the superiority of the two institutions with regard to their scoring ability against each other. The first two games were won by Sewanee, the third and fourth by Texas and in 1911 Sewanee defeated the Longhorns by the mere kicking of a goal, the score being 6 to 5.

Some of the greatest teams which have represented the University of Texas are among those who have met Sewanee. The '98 team was captained by R. W. Worsham, gentrified, hailing from Paris, Texas, Edwards of Princeton and Skelly of Dartmouth, were the coaches. This team had such men as Jim Hart, Bethea, Franklin, McMahon, Schreiner and Russ as its members. But despite these men Sewanee won with a score of 4 to 0. The next year the Tigers were equally successful against Texas, defeating them 12 to 0, while the same Texas team held Vanderbilt for a 6 to 6 score and beat Tulane twice. Jim Hart was captain and Clark of Chicago was coach. The same men who had starred on the '98 team have returned and in addition Sams, one of the greatest guards Texas ever produced, was on the team.

In 1902 Texas scored her first victory over Sewanee at Dallas, the Texans winning by a score of 11 to 0. Vance Duncan, the first of the famous Duncan family, contributed so much to Texas athletics, captained this team which was coached by Hart of Yale. Newt Marshall, Rembert Watson, Swinson, Glascock, Maverick and Ed Crane were on the team. Sewanee was not played by Texas again until 1905, when Texas again defeated her in one of the most sensational games ever played on Clark field. The score had stood at 11 to 11 during almost the entire game. During the last few minutes of play Lucian Parish at guard, and Bob Ramsdell at tackle, opened up wide holes in the Sewanee line, through which Don "Mogul" Robinson, the Texas captain and fullback, carried the ball down the field for the winning touchdown. Hutchison of Princeton, coached the team and in addition to the three players noted, Bowie Duncan, Householder and "Red" Hastings were the stars of the team.

Year before last, after a lapse of six years, Sewanee again came to Clark field and were victors after turning defeat into victory in the last moment. Texas scored in the second quarter on a fumble by Eckert. "Joel" James, the Texas half, recovered and went thirty yards for the first touchdown; Kirkpatrick missed a difficult goal. Sewanee blocked a kick in the last few minutes' play after the Texans had confused their signals, the result being a touchdown. McClannahan kicking goal for Sewanee.

The spirit of friendship between the two rival institutions has been one of the most pleasing features of the games with Sewanee. The following reprinted from the Sewanee Purple editorial columns is indicative of the feeling between the two schools. These remarks are relative to the last game played:

"There is nothing so pleasant as to be able to thank a crowd of gentlemen for showing the 'mettle of their pastime.' Our team succeeded in defeating by a very narrow margin, a team which played a strong, clean game, and which was backed by a student body which our men pronounce to be the most perfect type of gentlemen that they have ever had the pleasure of meeting. This means quite a good deal when we think of the fine treatment which we received at the hands of Georgia.

"It takes real, true men to see a very important game slipping away from their grasp and yet never forget that they must give their best and cheer an injured opponent, whose removal from the game would perhaps turn the tide. And yet this is what the Texans did—not because they were interested in any of our men, but because they were trying to make a good impression, but because they were gentlemen, and a gentleman can never suppress his natural and inborn tendencies to do what is right under any and all circumstances."

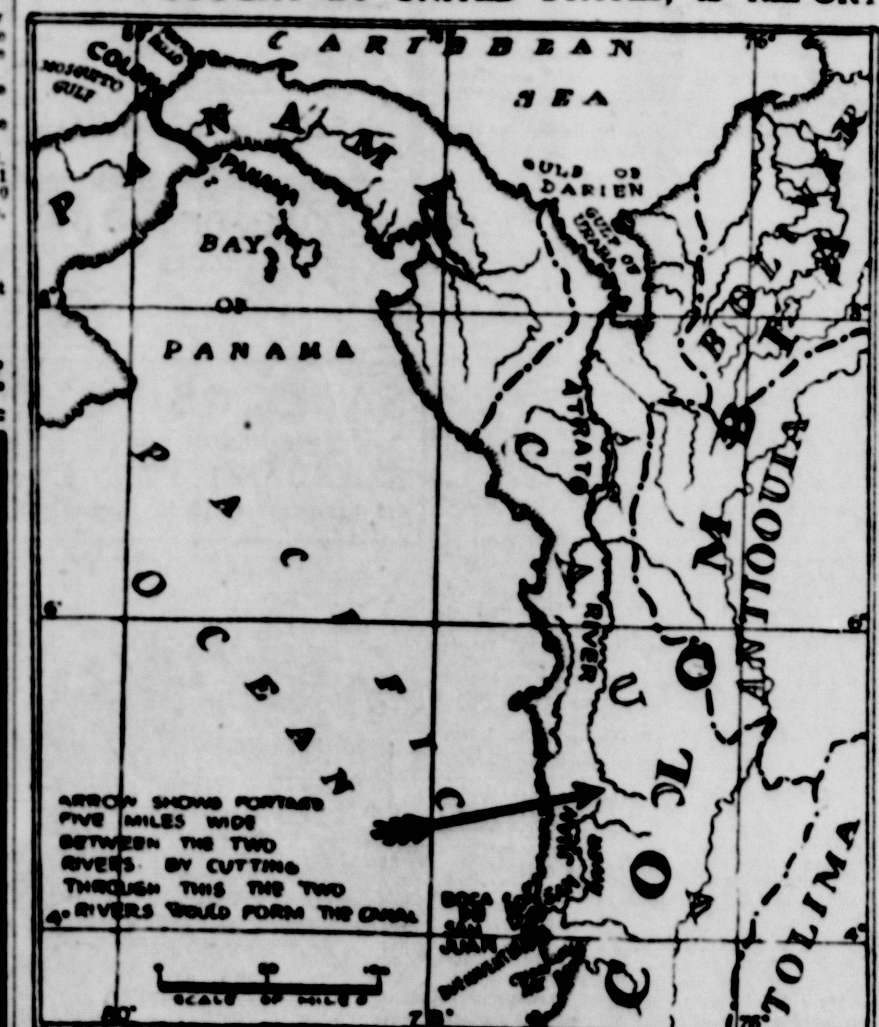

Many Texas boys have played on the Sewanee team. Their assistant coach, Frank Juhan, was a Dallas boy; Will Scarbrough of Austin was captain of the defeated team of 1905; Omand Simkins of Corsicana, son of Judge W. S. Simkins, professor of law at the university, was a well known half back at Sewanee. Three of the present members of the Sewanee squad are Texans, Palmer of Houston, Port of Waco and Chapman of Sherman.

BIGGEST THIRD DAY AT FAIRAttendance at Dallas Unusual—Ideal
Weather Prevails and Events Prove Attractive.

Dallas, Oct. 20.—The biggest third day crowd that has ever attended the Texas State Fair was on the exposition grounds Monday. The day was ideal. There was just enough coolness to put life into folk and early morning trains brought thousands of visitors into the city. Until late tonight the grounds were awash with visitors. It was Texas Day and hundreds of Texas editors were in attendance. It was also Texas Commercial Secretaries Day and many members of this order were in attendance.

The first races on the program were seen in the afternoon. The card called for three harness events and five running races. In addition to this grand stand spectators witnessed an auto polo game between an English and an American team. There were no serious accidents, but frequently the grand stand was brought to its feet by the hair-raising stunts of the auto polo players. The races were extraordinary and the big grandstand was filled with more than five thousand visitors.

The members of the Texas Press Association were greeted at the grounds by E. J. Kiest of the Dallas Times Herald.

ENGLAND GETS COLOMBIAN CANAL OPTION
SOUGHT BY UNITED STATES, IS REPORT

That the United States in the last month of the Taft regime tried to obtain an option for an ocean to ocean canal route through Colombia via the Atrato River is shown in documents received by Jose Carlos Martello, Colombian Consul at New Orleans, La.

Ernest Klepetho, a mining engineer who passed some time in Panama en route from Peru to his home in New York, brought the report that officials of the Isthmian Canal Commission are convinced that an understanding has been reached whereby the government of Great Britain will build the canal for which the United States sought an option. It is said plans for the work already have been drawn.

Long filler—yes, positively all clean long filler tobacco selected only from the great "Mano" district famous for producing the finest—smoothest—mild tobacco grown.

Here's another reason why Tom Keenes are never strong or bitter and always burn even—the manufacturers use only the finest grade of imported "Sumatra" wrappers which harmonizes perfectly with the "Mano" filler and maintains that sweet mild taste.

Forty-five Members of First Presbyterian Church Form New Uplift Society—Luncheon Served.

The movement to organize a men's social club in the First Presbyterian church, instigated at a meeting of the men on October 6 took formal shape last night when forty-five members of this church met in the church parlors where luncheon was served and formal organization perfected.

The purposes of the organization as stated by the president, A. R. King, are to combat the degrading influence of the present day amusements by offering to the young men a place to spend their spare hours in an elevating atmosphere.

Address by Frank Trau.
Previous to the formal organization expressions were had from a number as to what they thought of the organization of such a club and the possibilities of such a movement. Ex-President Frank Trau of the Young Men's Business League, made a short talk in which he told of what organization among the young men of the city in a commercial way had done.Allan Sanford in a short talk stated that he thought the world was going fun-mad, and that there was a great need for some such an organization to combat the influence of the cheap vaudeville and sensational motion picture.
R. O. Strotter, one of the new members of the church, made a short talk on the possibilities of such an organization in making the new comer to the city feel at home. A number of other impromptu talks were had from those present. Forty-five joined as charter members. The date for the next meeting was set at October 28. Previous to the business session luncheon was served by the young ladies of the church.HILL'S BUSINESS COLLEGES

Chicago, Oct. 20.—Secretary Bryan announced today that he had cancelled his engagement to speak at the Southern Commercial Congress at Mobile, October 27 to 31. FOUR KIDDIES IN PITABLE PLIGHT

BROWNLOWE IS IN JAIL, MOTHER OF CHILDREN IS DEAD.

ORPHAN'S HOME ONLY REFUGE

Probation Officer to Take Charge.
Clements on Trial Fourth Time.
Venue for Marquez.

On the allegation that they are dependent and neglected children, proceedings were instituted in county court yesterday to have Archie, aged 12; Bertie, aged 9; Hetty, aged 6, and Maudie, aged 4 years, children of E. A. Brownlowe, declared dependent and placed in charge of the county probation officer.

In the event this action is taken homes will be found for the children at one of the orphan homes of the city.

Probation Officer Ingram, in connection with the county attorney's office, prepared the affidavit declaring the children dependent. Hearing on the question has been set for Wednesday in county court. This action followed the arrest of E. A. Brownlowe and his confinement in the county jail. The man was indicted by the grand jury on statutory charge. The petition asking that the children be declared dependent alleges that they are being neglected, that their mother is dead and that he is now confined in the county jail. The children at present are being kept at the home of an elder and married brother. It is said he is unable to provide for them.

Probation Officer Ingram will appear in court and ask that they be turned over to him.

The Brownlowes resided near China Springs.

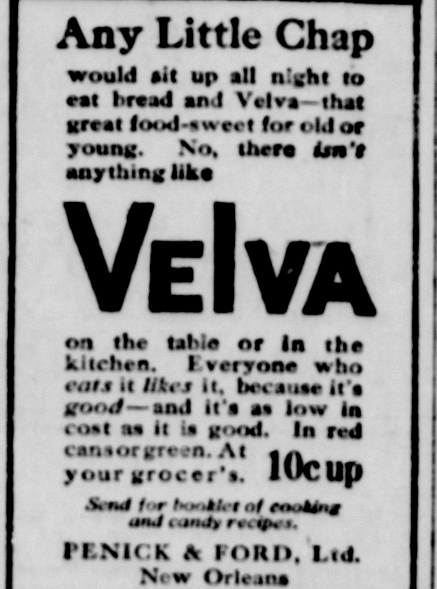

Fourth Trial of Clements.

Tried three times for the killing of Albert Harris, T. B. Clements again went to trial on the same charge in the Fifty-Fourth district court yesterday. Clements was convicted at each former trial. Following his first conviction a new trial was obtained, and the sentence of the lower court in the two subsequent trials was reversed. He was tried primarily for murder. Later the charge was reduced to manslaughter and he went to trial on that charge yesterday.

A jury was obtained and taking of testimony by the defense began in the afternoon.

Shot at a Dance.

Clements' case is one of the older criminal cases on the local court docket. The killing for which he is being tried occurred in January, 1912. He is charged with shooting Harris at a dance.

ROTARIANS HEAR ABOUT CONCRETE

W. J. McCOMBS, AN AUTHORITY,
DELIVERS AN INTEREST-ING ADDRESS.

HISTORY OF ITS DISCOVERY

Speaker Predicts That in Time Concrete Will Supplant Wood,
Brick and Stone.

With J. M. Clement presiding as toastmaster, the members of the Rotary Club met in regular session at the State House yesterday, shortly after noon. The attendance was large and those who were present had occasion to congratulate themselves, for an instructive discourse on "Concrete" was delivered by W. J. McCombs, an authority on the subject. Beginning with a brief history of the discovery and development of concrete as a material for building, which he predicted would in time entirely supplant wood and brick and stone, Mr. McCombs gave his audience some interesting information as to the uses to which concrete has been put in recent years.

W. J. McCombs' Address.

Mr. McCombs said in part:

To begin with, concrete is not a new product, or building material, although the reinforced material is. Concrete was known to the ancients as far back as history can remember. The Pantheon at Rome is probably one of the most noticeable verifications of this statement, it having been built by the Romans some two thousand years ago, and is still in what would be called good condition, aqueducts, water pipes, sewers, dams, etc., were all built many years ago out of this material. From the 12th to the 15th centuries, concrete passed through its dark ages, but was revived and is now considered our most promising building material with a field almost unlimited. Just recently, in the year 1908, a French chemist and scientist named M. LaRue, discovered that the secret of the construction of the pyramids in Egypt lies in the fact that they were constructed of concrete, the lines between the immense stones being the expansion joints left in the construction, and were probably poured into moulds, instead of being built stone at a time as they appear. Hence we know that concrete is an old building material and was probably better known and understood by the ancients than it is today.

Used in America in 1875.

The benefit to be derived, and the theory thereof, of reinforcing concrete was first discovered by Francois Coignet of Paris in 1849. In 1875 W. E. Ward, an American, used reinforcing in a building which he erected near Rochester, N. Y., reinforcing it with iron beams and rods and believing that he was the first to test this new material. In 1876 Mr. Thaddeus Hyatt, an American residing in London, conceived the idea of imbedding in the bottom of concrete beams strips and pieces of iron. He also claimed the distinction of being the first to conceive the idea. The object of thus imbedding iron in the concrete was to gain additional tensile strength without increasing the dimensions.

The first person known to successfully apply concrete with bars for reinforcing was a civil engineer of San Francisco by the name of P. H. Jackson, in the year 1877. Since that time many experiments have been conducted with this new material and many different styles of reinforcing have been devised and placed on the market, most of which are acceptable.

Supplanting Wood and Steel.

Reinforced concrete is taking the place of wood and steel for building purposes and has been found to be everlasting and practically indestructible where the conditions and functions of the material are properly considered by the designer and builder. Properly designed and constructed, concrete structures gain strength with age instead of deteriorating as is generally believed.

Laws Un satisfactory.

"In the design of reinforced concrete construction lies the success or failure of the entire purpose. It is not putting it too strong to say that a man is criminally negligent and careless when he attempts to design a structure on which many lives will depend without thoroughly understanding and considering the nature and strength of the materials which are to be used in his design. There are a multitude of rules formulate, and tables that have been prepared which aid the designer in understanding and considering the nature and strength of the materials which are to be used in his design. These laws, however, are usually tedious and cumbersome, and too often the designer underestimates their value and, following the line of least resistance, assumes that certain simple tables will suffice. Engineers and architects who do this, are dangerous, both to the public welfare, and to the reason just shown, and to the pocket-book, by reason of his fear that 'it might not be strong enough' or 'for safety's sake'."

Art and Science in Designing.

"Designing is at once an art and a science. It is the science of designing structures so as to resist the forces to which they are subjected while performing their functions. It is the art of so designing these structures that their first cost, plus annual depreciation, plus annual cost of maintenance shall be the least sum possible of attaining."

Material Employed.

"The materials used for reinforced concrete are Portland cement, sand, stone, steel or iron, and water. Sometimes coloring matter is used to secure variety in color. This coloring matter is usually of a mineral nature."

"Lime, the basic ingredient of cement, was found to be of value commercially as a binding medium centuries ago. It is obtained by burning limestone to drive off the moisture and carbonic acid gas. By mixing lime with water into a paste, the moisture is restored and the lime gradually absorbs from the atmosphere carbonic acid gas, and will again become limestone. This fact is taken advantage of. It was soon learned that the addition of sand to this paste would reduce its cost and give it two properties much to be desired. One was that it toughened the paste and prevented cracking while hardening, and the other was that it considerably increased the crushing strength."

"Cement was developed because masons needed a mortar that would harden beneath water, and because they also wanted a mortar that would resist the elements that attacked it. Some men found, centuries ago, that common clay added to lime mortar made it

BUSINESS MEN CLIMB

WHILE RIGGINS DELIVERS MOV-
ING LECTURE ON HOTEL
CONSTRUCTION.

Directors of Business Organizations
Inspect the Big Concrete Structure at Eighth and Austin.

The inspection of building operations on the Riggins hotel by the directors of the Chamber of Commerce and Young Men's Business league, which was postponed on account of rain last Thursday, took place yesterday afternoon.

The directors of the two business organizations, augmented by a number of interested citizens, assembled at the site of the rapidly rising hotel shortly after 4 o'clock in the afternoon. They were met by J. W. Riggins, business head of the hotel company, who presented the six-story party through the structural work, explaining in an interesting way the character of the construction of the massive concrete and steel building and detailing the uses to which each division of the hotel is to be devoted.

Riggins' Moving Lecture.

Mr. Riggins led the large party from the ground floor to the highest part of the incomplete structure, accessible by a ladder, and delivered an interesting lecture on hotel construction and answering many questions concerning details that were propounded by his interested listeners.

It is expected that the first floor of the hotel building will be in cozy shape for the big banquet to be tendered by the business men October 31 to Mr. Riggins in recognition of the enterprise, public spirit and confidence in the future of this city he has displayed in launching and bringing to a successful consummation a business achievement of such magnitude and importance.

Tickets Yet Obtainable.

Frank Trau and his committee in charge of the distribution of tickets for the testimonial banquet have made splendid progress with the branch of arrangements entrusted to them. The presence of practically every prominent business man in Waco at the banquet has been assured, but there are still many tickets available. The testimonial is to be a public affair and every good citizen is invited to participate. The tickets may be obtained from any member of the committee or from any officer of the business organizations.

A Sumptuous Feast.

The banquet will be one of the most elaborate in cuisine, service and other details ever spread in this city. There will be many prominent professional and business men from all parts of the state here for the occasion and the caterer's program will include addresses by speakers of note, some of whom will come from distant points for the occasion. The railroad men will be largely represented among the guests and there will be representatives from many of the newspapers of Texas outside of Waco.

Arthur J. Judge Here.

Arthur J. Judge of the Mercantile

Trust company of St. Louis was among those who looked over the building. Mr. Judge, who is a veteran steel and concrete construction expert, is in the city for the purpose of inspecting the new hotel, his company having put up the money to finance the work.

SCARBOROUGH'S NEW PLAY.

Waco Men Make a Hit With Second Production.

Since so much attention attached to the production of "The Lure," of which George Scarborough of Waco is the author, it will be interesting to the people of Waco to know that he has another play running in New York. A New York critic writes:

"At Bay," the new melodrama by George Scarborough, author of "The Lure," has registered an emphatic success. It is launched on a career of prosperity at the Thirtieth Street Theater, just next door to the Maxine Elliott, where the author's earlier play, blue-penciled by the police, is attempting to live up to its name. The Princess is the only other playhouse in West Thirty-ninth street. If Mr. Scarborough can rush a new drama into that theater he will have an absolute monopoly of the block.

Readers know the story of "At Bay." It had its premiere in Washington a few weeks ago. The newspaper here are almost unanimous in their praise of the play and the acting of Guy Standing. The Times says: "At Bay" is very good entertainment. Its prosperity is certain. The Evening Post says: "It is a remarkable achievement for so new a dramatist as George Scarborough." The Evening Sun says: "At Bay" proves beyond doubt that George Scarborough is not a sensationalist, but a dramatist. The Evening Telegram says: "If you want real suspense in a play and plenty of thrills, go and enjoy 'At Bay.' The Sun says: "'At Bay' thrills its audience and it is certainly popular." The American calls it "a vivid melodrama with a gripping act."

MARSHALL IRWIN ON CROPS.

Outlook in West Texas Best in Years.

Marshall Irwin, a prominent banker of Ballinger, was in the city yesterday. In discussing crop conditions in the west Texas region, Mr. Irwin said that the outlook was the best in years. The rains have put a seasoning into the ground that is unequalled in years, and prospects are good for plenty of grass through the winter and with the ground in excellent condition for planting next year. More traveling men are coming into west Texas, and opening it up for commercial development than ever before.
